FDR Opposed to Sales Tax for Defense Funds

Talks Tonight Will Be 'Exploratory,' He Informs Reporters

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt told a press conference today he would look with disfavor on sales tax to raise additional revenue for the defense program.

The statement was in response to a press conference question about his supper conference tonight with seven congressional and departmental fiscal advisers.

The chief executive said he had not heard of any talk that a sales tax might be considered in any new general tax bill in the session of congress starting in January.

When asked flatly whether he would look with favor on such a proposal he replied he would not.

The president told reporters that his discussion tonight would be merely exploratory, that both taxes and expenditures would be examined, but that no decisions would be reached at this time.

Invitations to the informal dinner and the equally informal discussion to follow went to Treasury Secretary Morgenthau and Assistant Secretary Sullivan, Budget Director Smith, Senators Harrison (D-Miss.) and George (D-Ga.) of the senate finance committee, and Representatives Doughton (D-N. C.) and Cooper (D-Tenn.) of the house ways and means committee.

Agree on Economy
Harrison and Doughton are chairmen of the congressional committees that handle revenue legislation.

President Roosevelt and his financial advisers seemed in agreement that non-military budget items must be cut to the bone. In addition, several of the Democratic revenue leaders in congress have come out for general increases in taxes to help, at least, balance the "normal" or domestic budget and possibly to take care of some of the increased outlays for defense.

While expenditures in the current fiscal year ending next June 30 have been estimated at around $13,500,000,000, congress approved appropriations and authorizations for this and future years totaling more than $20,000,000,000. Some congressmen predicted the 1941-42 budget may call for upwards of $15,000,000,000.

May Take Trip
President Roosevelt told a surprised press conference today that he might use the airplane for the first time in eight years if it should become necessary while he was away from Washington to return within 12 hours for some emergency.

He said he was planning a trip next week but could not say now where he was going.

Then he added, as newsmen's eyebrows lifted, that he would return by

7 Killed by Blast; Gas Leak Blamed

Toppenish, Wash.—(P)—Leaking gas, set off by some mysterious spark, was blamed today for the devastating explosion and fire which killed at least seven persons yesterday in a warehouse-business building here.

An eighth body was sought in the charred ruins after seven bodies were recovered yesterday from the smoking wreckage.

Fire Chief Leo Henle said he was convinced a gas explosion was to blame.

"They were trapped by debris," Henle related, "and we could hear their pitiful cries for several minutes after we started fighting the fire which crept closer to them. There was no possible way to rescue them and we could only try to keep the fire from getting to them. They probably died of suffocation and their bodies were charred after death."

The blast shook virtually this whole community, on the edge of the Yakima Indian reservation.

Almazan Backers Jeer at Wallace in Riot at Embassy

Mexico City—(P)—A pro-Almazan demonstration before the United States embassy last night which police ended with tear gas after stones had been hurled and two attaches marked a stormy beginning for the visit of United States Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace.

"Viva Almazan—Down with Wallace!" a crowd of 150 to 200 shouted when the latter arrived here to represent the United States at the inauguration of President-elect General Manuel Avila Camacho Sunday.

The demonstrators, disgruntled followers of General Avila Camacho, who was defeated by Avila Camacho in the disputed election of last July 7, jeered Wallace and threw stones at the steel-shuttered windows of the embassy before police scattered them with tear gas. No attempt was made to molest Wallace but the military and naval attaches of the embassy, Colonel Gordon McCoy and Commander Wallace Dillon, reported they were cuffed about by the crowd.

Flying sticks and stones caused a few minor injuries. Three youths were arrested for throwing rocks at the embassy and the Wallace cars.

Two Policemen Hit
Two policemen were struck by rocks but neither required hospital treatment.

Automobiles carrying the Wallace party rolled up to the embassy to the accompaniment of these cries:

"Viva Almazan! The United States betrayed Almazan! Down with Wallace!"

Almazan, who maintained that he defeated Avila Camacho in the July elections, renounced claims to the office last Tuesday. He said he was withdrawing in the interest of peace.

His followers expressed resentment toward Wallace because his presence here constituted United States recognition of Avila Camacho as the president-elect.

The schedule drawn up for Wallace today included presentation of his credentials to President Lazaro Cardenas this morning, followed by a luncheon in the embassy honoring retiring Foreign Minister General Eduardo Hay and a visit to Chapultepec castle, former home of Mexican presidents.

Wallace ignored the demonstration in front of the embassy.

"I don't know anything about it," he said when questioned about it later.

The annual convention instructed the A. F. of L. officers to guard against any encroachment on the present 40-hour week and the wages and standards now in effect.

The convention completed its work and adjourned at 1:30 p. m.

There was no indication in the convention's concluding business that a direct effort would be made toward reduction in the 40-hour week which was approved as being "efficient" under the national defense program.

It was stated in a committee report adopted by the convention that top efficiency was not possible in work exceeding the 40-hour week.

Delegates Leaving
This report was acted upon as the delegates worked overtime to finish their job which was scheduled to be completed yesterday.

The remaining delegates—dozens dashed homeward, anyway—pondered the acceptance speech promise of President William Green after his unanimous reelection to a seventeenth term that he would devote himself to bringing peace to the labor movement.

He did not disclose how he would go about seeking a settlement with the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Secretary-Treasurer George Meany and 15 vice presidents were reelected. Seattle was selected for next year's meeting place.

Convention adjournment was delayed by delegates with speeches on their chests and boosters of various cities bidding for the 1941 meeting. Consideration of some reports was the only major business remaining.

Santa Claus Goes
Picketing and Is Picked Up by Cops

Indianapolis—(P)—Santa Claus went picketing and was picked up by the police.

A picket dressed like the Christmas saint was taken into custody in front of the downtown office of the Republic Cresting company, where a strike is in progress.

Police Chief Michael F. Morrissey said that one of the signs he carried asked contributions for "A Merry Christmas for 300 children of P. C. Kelly's Republic Cresting workers." He already had collected $1.50.

The chief told the man, booked as John Slinkard, 61, he might not solicit funds on the street without a permit. Then he let him go. Slinkard said he'd get a permit.

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt said today he had referred to the defense commission the problem of speeding up work on new destroyers.

He also told a press conference that consideration was being given to elimination of machine tool bottlenecks.

Relating what took place at a White House conference yesterday with the defense commission, the president said he had referred the destroyer speedup question to William S. Knudsen, production chief of the commission.

Children of Appleton and vicinity were busy today writing letters to Santa Claus. Tomorrow morning these youngsters will have an opportunity to hand these letters directly to Santa, or else tell him orally what they want for Christmas.

Santa will make his first Appleton appearance at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. He'll ride on a huge sleigh from State street east on College avenue to Armory D. At the armory he'll visit with youngsters for an hour or so, taking their "orders" for Christmas toys.

Then he'll return to the intersection of College avenue and Oneida street for a radio message to children who, for sickness or other reasons, are unable to see him.

Company D of the 127th infantry, Wisconsin National Guard, is donating the facilities of the armory for Santa's use tomorrow.

The appearance of Santa is being sponsored by the retail division of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, which made arrangements for the Christmas decorations which span College avenue.

With Santa on his sleigh tomorrow will be a group of gnomes, the little fellows who are his workmen in his Arctic toy shop.

APPOINTED—Berkeley L. Bunker (above), 34, of Las Vegas, Nev., was named by Governor E. P. Carville as United States senator to succeed the late Key Pittman, who died shortly after his reelection. Bunker's appointment is only for the unexpired term ending early next year, but the governor said he would reappoint him for another two years, the maximum allowable under Nevada law.

Chair Workers Pick Union to Make Bargain

Employees Determine
Negotiating Medium
By 51 to 39 Vote

Employees of the Appleton Chair company, 1431 W. Spencer street, Thursday voted 51 to 39 to name the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America as their bargaining medium.

The election, which was ordered by the Wisconsin Employment Relations board, was the result of a strike of about half of the firm's production workers beginning Nov. 6. Striking employees have peacefully picketed the plant since.

Excluded from voting were the engineers, office workers, supervisors, foremen and executives leaving 90 production workers eligible. Ninety votes were cast and 46 were necessary to determine the bargaining agent.

The strike was called after workers demanded increases of five cents per hour in wages and the management refused. The strikers were not represented by a union at the time of the walkout.

The company now has five days in which to enter into negotiation with the new bargaining medium and negotiation must be completed within five days after that, under employment relations board rules.

The official record of the election was signed by Konrad Tuchscherer and Walter Kwapiel, of the state labor board; W. A. Westbury and H. T. Houle, of the chair company; and Glendale Strover and Carl Behnke, representing the workmen.

The CIO Aluminum Workers' union, claiming that an "irresponsible" sheet mill worker had threatened the life of a union agent demanding that he pay up $12 in back dues, called the strike when the company turned down the union's request that the worker be discharged.

The company stating it had "nothing to do with the collection of union dues" and describing the union complaint against the unidentified worker as "unjustified," also refused the union's subsequent demand that the man be transferred out of the union's bargaining unit.

Danger of Strike Is Allayed in Britain

London—(P)—Fears of a strike in Britain's war industries were allayed today as the result of an appeal last night from a 48-year-old dockworker to the governing body of the Amalgamated Engineering union to submit a wage dispute to arbitration.

Acting on Owen Jenkins' plea for mediation, the national committee decided against calling a half-day strike Dec. 14 to determine by vote the numerical strength back of a demand for a wage increase equivalent to 5 cents an hour.

Jenkins said he had two sons fighting for Britain.

Heil Approves Funds for Four State Groups

Says Blue Book Must Be Simplified So All
Can Understand It

Madison—(P)—Declaring that the Wisconsin Blue Book, directory of state government, must be simplified so that the "most mediocre mind can understand it," Governor Heil today said he would assume final supervision of its publication.

The governor made this statement at the biennial budget hearings at which he approved allocations requested by the supreme court, employment relations board, securities department and secretary of state.

The work of these departments was heartily endorsed by the governor.

Discussing the Blue Book appropriation with Howard Ohm, director of the legislative reference library, under whose direction the volume is compiled, the governor said:

"You know I am a little sore. That book gave me a little trouble during the campaign."

"All the facts are in there," Ohm said.

"Yes, but you can't find them. To put them together so you understand them, you need a CPA, an accountant, or a fine executive. I am great for simplicity—that is why I am sometimes called the 'plain governor.'"

Praises Court
The financial picture is not clear. I want it printed so that the most mediocre minds can understand it. Hereafter, before it goes to the printer, I want to see it. I want to see that it goes down the line according to my philosophy."

Of the supreme court, which requested and obtained approval of a $226,000 budget, the governor said:

"I have gone all over the United States bragging about the ability

Work Resumed at Aluminum Plant

New Kensington, Pa.—(P)—Work on large defense orders at the principal plant of the Aluminum Company of America was resumed today after a compromise settlement of a CIO strike—over a $12 union dues dispute—that cost 7,500 employees $250,000 in wages through a week's idleness.

The CIO Aluminum Workers' union, claiming that an "irresponsible" sheet mill worker had threatened the life of a union agent demanding that he pay up $12 in back dues, called the strike when the company turned down the union's request that the worker be discharged.

Jesse L. Livermore

Famous Plunger Shoots Himself

'Tired of Fighting,'
Jesse L. Livermore
Declares in Note

New York—(P)—Jesse L. Livermore won and lost four fortunes, any of them beyond the reach of better-than-average men; his wizardry was a Wall street legend; but yesterday he wrote "I am a failure" and ended his own life.

"I am tired of fighting. I can't go on." Thus a weary, 62 year-old man penned his epitaph in a little leather-bound notebook, sought out a quiet corner in an ante-room at the fashionable Sherry-Netherland hotel, and fired a pistol bullet into his head.

Livermore was known as the "boy plunger" ever since his first stock market exploit won him $3,000,000 back in 1907.

Police did not disclose the text of the note, scribbled over eight pages of the little memorandum book as he sat at a table in the hotel bar.

class and a 10,000-ton cruiser of the Bolzano class, while dive-bombers scored "very near misses" against two other cruisers, damaging one of them.

Another cruiser was reported "seriously on fire aft" and two destroyers were damaged by gunfire.

Another eight-inch gun cruiser was reported to have "reduced speed immediately after an attack by torpedoing swordfish planes, but the admiralty did not claim she was damaged."

British Ship Damaged
It acknowledged damage to a British cruiser but said it was slight though seven men were killed aboard her.

The Italian high command, in its story of the Sardinia fight issued earlier yesterday, listed the fascist casualties as "serious" damage to a destroyer and a hit by a dud shell on a cruiser. This version said two British warships were damaged by shellfire while three other British warships including a battleship and an aircraft carrier, were bombed.

The admiralty said the 10,000-ton British cruiser Berwick was hit twice, resulting in the deaths of seven men, including an officer. The damage, however, was said to have been slight and "the ship is ready for service."

"One force of swordfish aircraft carried out a torpedo attack on the enemy battleships, (of which the admiralty said there were two) and one torpedo was seen to hit a battleship of the new and powerful Littorio class," the British communiqué reported.

"Another force of swordfish attacked an enemy unit consisting of three eight-inch gun cruisers, one torpedo hit was almost certainly

Liverpool Chief Target of Nazis In Bomb Attack

Three Daylight Air Alarms in London; R.A.F. Also Active

London — (P) — Germany's raiders singled out Liverpool, one of Britain's great cities and her chief western port, for their heaviest hits in last night's trading of air blows. Britain's ports, through which the vital commerce of this island kingdom must flow, apparently have become the focus of Nazi raids.

By picking out Liverpool, shipping center for the industrial midlands, the Germans added another to the lengthening list of British ports bombed recently — among them Bristol, Plymouth and Southampton.

London remains a target. Up to, shortly after noon today, there had been three daylight air alarms.

On the other side, official British sources reported that "strong forces" of R. A. F. bombers fanned out over German territory last night in raids from the English channel to the Baltic.

They said attacks were made on gas works, communications and armament factories in the German cities of Dusseldorf and Mannheim, on oil targets at Baltic port and on the "invasion ports" of Antwerp, Boulogne and Le Havre.

Bomb Shipyards
The British air ministry also reported that its raiders bombed the naval shipbuilding yards at Stettin, Germany, and said the synthetic oil plant attacked was at Politz in Germany.

Other targets were docks at the German port of Ouxhaven, railway lines in western Germany, military stores near Mainz and the Koblenz and Eindhoven airports, the ministry said. It acknowledged loss of two planes.

Besides "the main wave of the attack" on Merseyside, a joint communiqué of the air and home security ministries acknowledged that German bombs fell on "a large number of isolated points in the southern part of England."

But nowhere outside of Merseyside and northwest, it said, were casualties or damages heavy and even there "the numbers of killed or injured are not as great as might have been expected."

Although damage admittedly was done to many buildings and some "serious" fires were caused, British reports said the raiders were met with such violent anti-aircraft fire they literally were blasted away from their targets and were unable to smash their main objectives.

Heavy Barrage
One report after another from provincial areas stressed the ferocity of the "back-ack" barrage, not only from the Merseyside area but also from East Anglia, northeast England, the midlands and Wales.

The Press association, British news agency, said the damage to Liverpool was not heavy and that fires set by incendiary bombs were brought quickly under control.

Another Merseyside town underwent what was called its severest raid so far and a third reported a "fairly heavy" attack.

Although Londoners heard the thrum of heavy bombers' engines during their 1,000th hour under air-raid alarm, the raiders passed the capital by after the early night hours and the all-clear sounded before 1 a. m., following a long period of quiet.

Three areas of London were identified officially as scenes of recent heavy air-raid damage — Silvertown, East London district which was flattened by a disastrous munitions explosion in the World war; Hackney, in northeast London, and Willesden, in the northwest.

Late information showed that residential districts in two south-western towns were damaged more extensively than first reports indicated, the ministry of home security said in a communiqué.

A small number of persons was killed, but casualties were not considered heavy, the communiqué added.

Seek Ring in Snow for Two Hours; It's Found By Owner in Overshoe

Milwaukee — (P) — For two hours, starting at 2:20 a. m. today, Patrolman Francis Rappaport hunted in the snow on a street corner for the $500 ring which Mrs. Goldie Payne had lost.

The resourceful policeman was so conscientious that he even went to a nearby dairy plant for buckets of hot water with which to melt the snow in a 12-foot area. He had no luck.

At 4:30 a. m., Mrs. Payne telephoned the police:

"I took off an overshoe and found the ring in it."

Record Entry In Stock Show

Quarters for 41st Exposition Crowded Beyond Capacity

Chicago — (P) — Blue-blooded animals crowded the quarters of the International Live Stock exposition beyond capacity today as agriculture's biggest show prepared for its 41st performance. The exposition opens an 8-day run tomorrow.

There were 4,108 individual entries of prize cattle, horses, sheep and swine and not enough space could be found for all of them in the huge amphitheater built after the 1934 stock yards fire with the expectation that it would be large enough to house the exposition "for all time."

A weeding out committee went to work to reduce the number so that all could be exhibited indoors. Stock thus eliminated will be sold off immediately.

Paradoxically, the total number of animals entered, 11,000, was 2,300 fewer than last year. Manager B. H. Heide explained that the reduction came in the carload entries because cattle market prices have been high since September and owners preferred to sell instead of waiting until after they exhibited at the international. But the carlots are quarantined outdoors, anyway, in stock yards pens.

The exposition is the windup event of the show season for stock raisers and crop growers, coming after the county and state fair circuits and other national shows. Its awards and honors are considered tops. Attendance was 448,000 last year.

Conscription of Industry Rapped

Indianapolis — (P) — Paul G. Hoffman of South Bend, president of the Studebaker corporation, says any "attempt to conscript industry will delay our defense program and bring ultimate disaster to our economy."

"Co-operation, freely given, will produce better goods faster than any other method known to man," the automobile manufacturer declared in an address last night to the Indianapolis Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"There are those who believe that we should adopt Hitler's methods to get Hitler's results," he went on. "I say that we must avoid Hitler's methods to surpass Hitler's results."

He saw as "the present task of every group—business, industry, labor and agriculture—to fortify and strengthen our American system."

"Unless that is done," he added, "there is a grave question in my mind as to whether we will be able to defend ourselves or have anything left that is worth defending."

He said "the great dynamic of our enterprise system is freedom" and this had "released the individual energies of men." He urged tax changes to spur investment of "venture capital."

Rumania Plays Into Nazi Chief's Hands

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York — (P) — Rumania's primitive political passions certainly appear to have delivered that unhappy country, neatly trussed, into the hands of the Germans.

It is true, fuhrer Hitler may eventually find a mixed blessing in this blood-purge that is being carried out against supporters of exiled King Carol by vengeful and rebellious members of the pro-Nazi Iron Guard which seized rule from Carol in September.

This revolt (for that's what it seems to be) naturally further disturbs the Balkans, which Hitler is trying to keep from boiling over. It also is a warning of the ever-present fire underlying this volcanic part of the world.

I remarked in this column the other day that I thought the fuhrer was riding a tiger in trying to maintain control of Europe by force. The present position in the Balkans is a reminder that they are among his greatest problems.

However, on the whole I should say that the Nazi chieftain probably is pleased at the turn of events in Rumania. He now can impose what amounts to German military law on the country without having to explain to uneasy Russia or the rest of the world. Is he not forced to maintain order?

Opposed Nazidom
Then, too, most of the prominent people slain were among the sternest opponents of nazidom. Hitler may not approve of their removal in such a bloody manner, but it's hard to picture him weeping over the disappearance of men who were going their utmost to block his domination of their country.

Admittedly Hitler already had his thumb on Rumania's new totalitarian government under Dictator Antoncescu, "spiritual chief" of the now unruly Iron Guard. The Nazi leader also had a big and steadily growing army in the country, but he was keeping it in the background so as not to antagonize the public too much or inflame the rest of the Balkans.

Today the hob-nailed boots of the Nazi soldiers are crashing on the pavements of the Rumanian capital for all and sundry to hear. The lid is off, and Hitler can move as he sees fit.

The semblance of independence which Rumania was striving to maintain must disappear. She is to all intents a vassal state of the Reich, and will thus remain so long.

McKay to Fight Federal Charges

Michigan Republican Leader Sees 'Revenge' As Cause of Charges

Detroit — (P) — Republican National Committeeman Frank D. McKay, charging he was being conspired against "for political revenge," prepared today to fight the federal government's accusations of mail fraud.

The Grand Rapids (Mich.) GOP leader, thrice indicted by a special grand jury, said political foes had made a "vicious attempt" to destroy his reputation and business. He indicated he welcomed a court fight.

"I shall have that fair opportunity," McKay said, "to defend myself before judge and jury which, thank God, is still guaranteed to every citizen of the United States."

Already indicted on charges of participating in a $500,000 shake-down of distillers selling to the state of Michigan and defrauding Edsel Ford of $918 to cover an allegedly non-existent campaign deficit, McKay was accused a third time yesterday.

Third Indictment
The grand jury charged he had figured in an attempt to defraud the city of Grand Rapids of approximately $300,000 in connection with a $2,225,000 bond issue in 1938 to finance a pipeline to bring water from Lake Michigan.

The indictment said that McKay, along with Stranahan, Harris and Company of Toledo, Ohio, a bond house, had manipulated bidding on the bond issue. Robert S. Mikesell of Toledo, vice president of the company, and Stewart P. Blasier of Detroit, a Michigan agent, also were named defendants.

McKay stood mute when arraigned on charges in all three indictments and was freed on $5,000 bond. Trial of the first case, the alleged fraud against Ford, was set tentatively for Jan. 21.

It was indicated meanwhile that the government's investigation in Michigan would be broadened. O. John Rogge, head of the criminal division of the department of justice, said grand jury inquiries would begin at Grand Rapids "in the near future."

Eight remaining defendants of 17 persons named in mail fraud indictments returned by a federal grand jury here were arraigned today in federal court.

Those arraigned today were: Henry Reiter, Detroit; James A. Trimble, Flint; Roy Florey, Hudson; Wellington E. Niles, purchasing agent for the administrative board; Henry Galster, Peleusky cement manufacturer; Fisher L. Layton, former city official of Flint; Robert P. Mikesell and Stewart P. Blasier, of the Toledo bond house of Stranahan, Harris and Company.

Each stood mute and was released on $2,000 bond.

U. of Chicago Chapel Assistant Registers

Chicago — (P) — The signed selective service card of Howard Schomberg was in the files of his local draft board today and in addition to the signature it bore his notation that: "I am a conscientious objector."

The 25-year-old assistant dean of the University of Chicago chapel refused to register at the appointed time and, as a result, federal charges were brought against him.

Yesterday, however, he changed his mind and signed the card, explaining that he preferred to take his stand now "within the law, rather than outside." He is a licensed minister.

He was scheduled to appear next Wednesday on the federal charge. No comment on the latest development in the case was forthcoming from the district attorney's office.

War Situation Today

Both Sides Claim Victory in Nazi and British Naval Clash

A battle between British and German destroyers in the English channel early today brought conflicting claims of victory, while in the 33-day-old Balkan war it was established that the Greeks are in possession of Pogradetz, Italy's stronghold in the west, 30 miles inside Albania.

An Associated Press correspondent with the Greek armies, sent out the first on-the-spot verification of Pogradetz fall, writing his dispatch on a typewriter abandoned by an Italian officer.

England's teeming port of Liverpool, on the Irish channel, suffered a terrific night assault in which the Germans said hundreds of Nazi bombers set fires visible for many miles.

German pilots returning to their bases from the attack said the great port was "burning."

A British communiqué admitted the damage was "somewhat more extensive than was at first indicated," but asserted that the toll of human life was not heavy.

In the battle of destroyers, the London admiralty acknowledged that a British ship was hit, but asserted that "the enemy units retired at high speed" toward Brest, on the Nazi-held French coast, and that "damage was inflicted on the enemy."

As the German destroyers fled, the London communiqué said, they were "pursued by our forces."

Berlin reports said the German destroyers torpedoed two British destroyers and sank four other vessels in an attack near the English coast, at the Atlantic end of the English channel. The Germans said their craft returned unscathed after the fight.

The furious assault on Liverpool — striking at waterfront warehouses, docks, grain silos and oil stores — added another to the lengthening list of British ports bombed recently, among them Bristol, Plymouth and Southampton.

Britain's chief western port, Liverpool is the shipping center of the densely-populated industrial midlands and a vital artery for seaborne supplies to the island kingdom.

While Londoners underwent their 1,000th hour under air-raid alarm, with German raiders stabbing sporadically at the empire capital again by daylight, the London Daily Mail raised the suggestion that a new "mystery weapon" is being tried out against Nazi night bombers.

The newspaper said London observers had noted a weird blue-white beam of light flashing in the sky during anti-aircraft barrages, cutting across the rays of the regular searchlights on the ground.

Up to noon, London had three daylight alarms.

British night bombers were busy, too, pounding the Germans in widespread raids that included naval yards at Stettin, a synthetic oil plant at Politz, the port of Cuxhaven, Mainz, Koblenz, Eindhoven, Dusseldorf, Mannheim and the "invasion" ports of Antwerp, Boulogne and Le Havre.

In the Greek-Italian war, Premier Mussolini's high command reported that three divisions (60,000 men) of the fascist 11th army "counter-attacked and broke off" Greek attempts to slash through the Italian lines. The scene was not given.

With their land armies faltering, the Italians bombed Greek lines, but Athens dispatches said the Greeks were pressing ever deeper into Albania despite fierce resistance.

The fascist high command said that British planes again attempted to raid Brindisi and the Taranto naval base, but the violent anti-aircraft barrages forced the raiders away. Bombs dropped near Brindisi, it said, fell in open country and the sea.

On the fascist scoreboard of successes, the Italian high command chalked up the following:

1. An Italian submarine sank a 10,000-ton British transport in the Atlantic.

2. A big British warship was reported hit by a heavy-caliber bomb in an Italian air-raid on British naval formations near Malta.

3. Italian warships and planes bombed the Grecian Isle of Corfu.

Hear Evidence in Mail Fraud Trial Of Stock Salesman

St. Paul — (P) — A jury in United States district court here began hearing evidence in the federal government's mail fraud case against Larry Kelling, Minneapolis stock salesman.

Colorado and Nevada ranchers and mine operators, the superintendent of the Denver mint, a representative of the San Francisco mint, and assayers were among witnesses here for the trial.

Kelling was indicted on 12 counts charging he misled investors in promotion of the South Platte Placer Mining company of Colorado, the Floritis company of Nevada and the Col-Neva Placer company of Colorado.

Another defendant, Don Leach, a native of Rice Lake, Wis., now identifying himself as a resident of Magdalena, Sonora, Mexico, has pleaded nolo contendere and is being held in the Ramsey county jail for sentence.

Among witnesses called today by Linus Hammond, first assistant United States district attorney, prosecuting the case, was Fred Trinkle of Fort Morgan, Colo., manager of the J. P. Curry ranches, farms and mining properties.

Trinkle testified as to Leach's operations in the vicinity of Fort Morgan.

Gets Six Months for Fleeing Taycheedah
Fond du Lac — (P) — Marguerite Eisenwag, 22, who escaped from the state women's prison at Taycheedah last summer, was sentenced to an additional term of six months to a year in prison yesterday. She pleaded guilty to the charge in municipal court.

The additional term will begin at the expiration of her current sentence, Jan. 8, 1942. She was sentenced to Taycheedah originally on a burglary charge.

DIM LIGHTS FOR SAFETY

1940 Traffic Toll May Top '39 Mark By More Than 2,000

Chicago — (P) — The National Safety council predicted today — on the basis of the first 10-month performance — that the 1940 traffic toll would exceed last year's by possibly as much as 2,000.

Heading into the dangerous Christmas season, America has a 10-month toll of 27,300 deaths, compared with 26,750 in the same period of 1939, the council said. The total was 1,000, or 6 per cent, higher than the 1939 period.

In October, the toll of 2,350 deaths was 4 per cent more than the 3,439 in the previous October, the report added.

Traffic deaths for the remainder of the year must be cut one-fourth to bring the 1940 toll down to the 32,000 total of 1939, the council reported, adding that this "is improbable."

Bridgeport, Conn., with a population of 147,300, was the largest city reporting a perfect October record. Only 57 cities had unblemished records for the first 10 months, with Lakewood, Ohio, the largest on this list.

The list of cities of 250,000 or more population reporting death reductions for the first 10 months and the rate of their decrease included:

Minneapolis, 17 per cent; Akron, 11; Chicago, 4.

The low death rate cities for the first 10 months, classified by population groups, included:

Group 1 (over 500,000) — Buffalo, 10.1; Milwaukee, 10.2.

Group 4 (50,000-100,000) — Lakewood, Ohio, none; Davenport, Iowa, and Durham, N. C., 2.

Federal Funds Flow Freely in Expanded Vocational Program

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—A vast expansion in the educational efforts of the vocational education system in Wisconsin is underway with the aid of federal funds advanced under the national defense program, the state department of vocational education reported today to state budget authorities.

In a program intended to make available increased numbers of skilled workmen available for defense industries, a three fold program is now underway in Wisconsin through the vocational education system which is being financed by more than $1,200,000 in new federal funds, according to George P. Hambrecht, director of the state department.

Federal funds amounting to $60,000 a month are being used for vocational education of defense workers, primarily those who are given short-term "refresher" courses in fields of work where they were previously employed.

Second Phase
A second phase of the program offers training for out-of-school NYA youths.

This project is now being begun, with an allotment to the state of about $166,000. NYA boys assigned to work projects of the National Youth administration will be given training supplementary to the job to which they are assigned.

Another allotment of federal money amounting to almost $200,000 is available to the state board of vocational and adult education for training of rural and non-rural youth for the present fiscal year. The program is designed to make effective farmers of boys, rural and non-rural.

The national defense projects have been begun to supplement the regular vocational training activities of the state and the localities in Wisconsin, a long-time program which is financed by state, federal and municipal funds.

There are now 45 schools of vocational and adult education in Wisconsin enrolling a total of 125,000 persons. Of those 36,000 are in the day schools and 89,000 in the evening schools. The schools will cost about $4,000,000 during the present year.

There are also 212 departments of vocational agriculture enrolling almost 10,000 students in the day school, and approximately 7,000 in the part-time day and evening school classes. There are 108 departments of rural vocational home making enrolling more than 7,000 in the day school and almost 5,000 in the part-time day and evening school programs.

Red Cross Warns That December Is Dangerous

The Outagamie county chapter of the American Red Cross joined with other safety organizations today to warn that with increased traffic congestion added to adverse weather conditions, December is a perilous month for pedestrians.

The Red Cross emphasized that the pedestrian invariably comes out second best in an encounter with an automobile and warned that the man on foot should be willing to go more than half way in avoiding such encounter, though he may be legally entitled to the "right of way."

and fairness of the Supreme Court of Wisconsin. It is just the best, most efficient, sane thinking body of men I have ever worked with."

The chief executive said he was "proud of the labor board," and quickly approved its request for an appropriation of $100,000. The board already has returned $15,000 of its current appropriation to the general fund.

Funds May Be Changed

With the same cordiality, he approved the securities department's appropriation of $68,000, and the secretary of state's allotment of $253,794. These and other funds approved by the governor may be reduced or increased by the legislature when it meets next year.

The governor indicated he would seek introduction of a bill to re-finance the cost of constructing the $1,750,000 new state office building for which the state paid about half. He said it might be better if the state appropriated a direct sum for the building instead of liquidating it on a rental basis.

"We pay compound interest at 3 per cent—that doubles itself in 18 years—and so the citizenship pays twice the cost of the building before it owns it. I would recommend that the legislature appropriate the money outright and save the taxpayers quite a bit of money."

The governor approved a budget of $40,000 for the soil conservation commission, an increase of approximately $20,000 over the current appropriation. He refused to raise the free library commission's administrative allocation from $161,775 to $184,478, but boosted its book fund from $13,000 to $18,000.

Discussion also will center on the spring music festivals. The music directors will attend a dinner and business meeting tomorrow night at Hotel Appleton.

Red Cross Extends Deadline for Making Sweaters and Dresses

Mrs. Paul Hackbert, chairman of the war production committee of the local Red Cross chapter, said today the deadline for the delivery of clothing made under the program has been extended from Dec. 31 to Jan. 31.

Mrs. Hackbert asked for more women to knit sweaters and complete dresses and other clothing. Yarn and material will be furnished by the Red Cross. The dresses are cut and ready to sew on, she said.

A shipment of about 200 sweaters, knitted by Appleton women, and about 200 women skirts will go to New York for shipment to Great Britain this week, she said.

obtained on the rear ship—a 10,000-ton ship of the Bolzano class—and the leading ship of this formation was observed to have reduced speed immediately after this attack.

"A force of Skuas (naval dive-bombers) dive-bombed a formation of three six-inch-gun cruisers of the condottieri class. Two very near misses were obtained, and it appears that one of the enemy cruisers was damaged."

A fascist destroyer of the Grecale class was said to have been down by the stern, listing heavily, and another destroyer was reported listing slightly and losing way.

Rome —(P)—An Italian submarine sank a 10,000-ton British transport in the Atlantic, the Italian high command reported today.

Italian naval and air formations bombarded the island of Corfu with destructive effect and fascist bombers subjected Greek positions on the Albanian front to heavy attack yesterday, the daily war bulletin said.

Counter-attacks by three Italian divisions on the Albanian-Greek front thwarted Greek attempts to filter into the fascist lines, the high command added.

It also reported that British planes again attempted to bomb the Taranto naval base and Brindisi but heavy anti-aircraft fire prevented them from dropping bombs, it said, except near Brindisi. Those missiles, the high command said, fell in open country or the sea.

A big British warship was reported hit by a heavy bomb during an Italian air bombardment of British naval formations near Malta.

Bomb Sea Gateways

Athens —(P)—Fierce bombardment of Italy's sea gateways into Albania and a rout of Italian destroyers bombarding the new British defended Greek island of Corfu was reported today by the British Royal Air Force.

"Bomber aircraft carried out raids on Santi Quaranta (Porto Edda) where destroyers bombarding the island of Corfu fled on approach of our formations, Durazzo and Elbasan (Elbasani)," said a communiqué apparently covering action yesterday and last night.

Shipping at Porto Edda was attacked and "bombs were seen to explode on wharves," said the R. A. F. communiqué. At Durazzo, another Albanian port, and Elbasani, an island base, "all the bombs fell in the target area but the results were not observed due to weather conditions."

Two of the British planes "failed to return to their bases."

Pilots Bail Out

One was a fighter lost in collision while in combat with an Italian plane which also crashed in flames. The British pilots bailed out but had not been found.

Ten Italian planes in all were said to have been downed in the last two days, including seven out of 20 fighters surprised by an R. A. F. fighter formation yesterday over southwestern Albania.

"Our aircraft at once attacked and in less than a minute seven enemy aircraft were shot down," the communiqué said.

With the "choicest regiment" of the Italian army reported vanquished in a bitter fight on the southern front, Greeks asserted their forces were pressing deeper into Albania against air, sea and land resistance.

The Greek command reported Italian air attacks "on some points of the front" and widespread raids behind the lines.

Greek information from the front suggested that defeat of an Italian "regiment of death"—picked fascists sworn to die rather than retreat—may have been greater than at first reported and that the Italians may be in full flight up the coast.

All Five Members of Fishing Party Safe

Brownsville, Texas —(P)—All five members of a fishing expedition that cracked up in a lonely area of Mexico were safe.

The last, Ray Bogges, Houston business man, made his way along the Mexican beach to La Pesca, fishing village at the mouth of Sota La Marina river, and caught a ride on a peddler's truck to Victoria.

Three others—Charleton Bogges, son of the finance company executive; George Erickson, Galveston sailor, and Donzil Hollis, Houston school boy—spent 72 hours in the desolate Mexican interior before finding their way to Mamoras, across the border from Brownsville. They went without food and water two days.

The fifth, W. B. Nolan of Houston, was rescued by a United States destroyer after a high wind whipped their yacht out to sea Sunday.

British Censorship Problems Principal Press Topic Today

London —(P)—British censorship was a principal editorial topic today in the British press as a result of discussion of the problem by information ministry officials and American correspondents.

In a meeting yesterday, Minister of Information Alfred Duff Cooper said that security and winning the war were more important than censorship.

plane if it were found he was too far away from Washington to come back by rail in 12 hours.

The president emphasized, however, that a plane would be used only if it became necessary.

There was much amusement in the back-and-forth banter over an old impression among reporters that the secret service would not permit him to fly.

Joining in the laughter, the chief executive said the secret service never had told him not to travel by air. He added, however, with a smile, that the service which guards his movements had warned him that plane travel for him would be difficult because a whole armada would be needed to take along protecting agents.

He said he had not informed the secret service of his conditional decision to fly, but thought it could be worked out amicably without laying down any rule.

Asked if a presidential flight might conceivably cover the continent, the president replied it might. Asked whether a navy flying boat might be at his disposal on his trip next week, he humorously evaded this by saying he might use a stratosphere craft.

Although he had flown much in the World war days when he was assistant secretary of the navy, Mr. Roosevelt told reporters what they already knew, that the last time he flew was in 1932 when he traveled from Albany to Chicago to accept his first nomination to the presidency.

Colonists Angry Over U. S. Demand

Palmer, Alaska —(P)—Discontent has flared openly among some of the Matanuska project settlers over a government corporation edict that land payments must be made by the Dec. 1 deadline.

Nov. 15 was the due date for the first land contract payments by the settlers, who came to the government-sponsored relief project five years ago. Previous payments have gone toward seed loans, hospital accounts, chattels and special accounts.

The Alaska Rural Rehabilitation Corporation, a government agency, recently notified the colonists that land payments or satisfactory arrangements for them would be required. Otherwise, the warning said, the agency might repossess the land.

Some of the settlers have been circulating a petition to start a court contest over the land contracts. One of the objections voiced to the contracts is over compulsory membership in the colony cooperative.

Several families, however, have paid up under their contracts and others have made substantial payments.

The original government plan was to spend $3,000 apiece to reestablish farm families from relief rolls in middle west states. The cooperative in the last year has taken over virtually all of the colony's economic activities.

The Sprawling State Government

The state government of Wisconsin during the last two years has experienced some positive advances in organization. To the credit of the last legislature be it said that some of the good reorganization bills became laws, while the poorly conceived ones were wisely consigned to the wastebasket.

Now another legislature is due, and we can consider what further improvements, what additional simplification of the state government structure is desirable and possible. A glance through the directory of the state government in the 1940 Blue-book is suggestive.

Is there any reason why, if the department of agriculture can logically take code regulation under its wing, it cannot take over the functions of the grain and warehouse commission at Superior? Or must that latter body continue to be a perch for northern Wisconsin politicians?

Or we find ourselves wondering why the real estate brokers' board, a regulatory agency, cannot be covered by the department of securities. And we are again reminded that there are at least three separate, independent and rival boards of higher education in Wisconsin, while the department of public instruction exists to administer the public school system. And the free library commission continues to manage its affairs independently, when it would logically and more profitably be connected with the public educational system as a division of the department of public instruction. We have a department of research, and a state planning board, and we'll wager that the respective heads of the departments, housed in different capitol buildings, don't confer once a month.

Out of a newspaper's experience with the state government and its scores of departments, the Post-Crescent makes another observation. It is that those in charge of the state government today can well consider a complete reorganization of the hodge-podge of publicity services which have sprung up in the capitol during the last decade.

Into this newspaper's editorial offices each week comes a steady stream of publicity releases, reports, bulletins, books, all prepared at great cost by state departments for the enlightenment of the citizen and taxpayer.

Almost every major department at Madison has on its payroll a press agent, some of them have several. Every state department has its own printing, paper, engraving, and editorial expenses. The total cost of such a program is nowhere shown in state budgets or financial reports, but it runs into many thousands of dollars.

Now we have a hunch that a program tried in some other states recently, notably New Mexico, Louisiana and Indiana, would be far more fruitful for the state government as a whole, far more informative and less expensive for the taxpayer. It can be demonstrated that for the money that is now spent separately and not always efficiently or wisely by separate state departments, the state government could set up a publicity and information unit of greater value than the unrelated rival and wasteful publicity projects now operating. It might also eliminate some of the personal back-biting advertising stunts which now too frequently come out of the capitol.

We suggest it for Governor Heil's consideration.

Americans of Two Languages

The Vice President-elect was selected to go to Mexico for the inauguration there because he talks Spanish. The fact that Mr. Roosevelt speaks French fluently has been used on occasions to good purpose.

Both of these men are quite out of step with the ordinary run of Americans who may get a spatter of German, French or Spanish at school and hurriedly forget it. Of course, we are not in the situation of European countries where understanding more than one language is almost an essential to any person in business or political circles. But we could do much better by ourselves if we educated more men and women in some other language than their native tongue. Spanish is preferred because of Latin America and the ties that should bind us together. But German and French are equally useful when a man is in a foreign country and finds himself against a stone wall.

The advantage of linguistic development to Americans is not superficial by any means. And that is why it should be pushed much more constantly.

Coventry

Is Coventry to be the Zeebrugge of 1940?

It may be remembered that English valor struck a new high at Zeebrugge, a little coastal town in Belgium, from which the Germans sent forth submarines in World War No. 1. The description of the attack upon Zeebrugge by several thousand young Englishmen, who seemed hopeful of losing their lives just to plug up that little harbor, was a classic. But even more, it was a flail that whipped America along the road to war.

Coventry may take its place.

Somewhat we seem to have an interest in Coventry. Everyone remembers Lady Godiva. And the fair lady was of Coventry. But today the gaunt ruins of the town's cathedral speaks a stronger sermon than even all the faithful addresses that have been heard within its walls throughout centuries.

The story is of the savagery of war and its inflictions upon women and children, the aged and the innocent. The written words, burnished by the photographs, stir the blood, grit the teeth and clench the fists. The American may want to get into this thing and stop the barbarity.

That was a perfectly natural feeling in the days of Zeebrugge. No one told us we couldn't stop the barbarity. No one inferred that our quest of the Holy Grail would become a mocking piece of laughter in history. But it turned out that way.

During World War No. 1 we had the opportunity to observe the progressive approach of America to the battlefield. At the outset, there seemed no more chance of our participation than in September 1939. Our hot anger at Berlin, plus pleasant and adroit propaganda, plus an idealistic determination to rid the world of the devil, once and for all, consigned him to Hell where he belonged, and lock him up securely, got us in.

And after a while the effects of Zeebrugge wore off. Before the treaty of peace was signed, men had pretty well discarded their idealism. That other war was officially concluded in a manner that was bound to bring the war we see before us. Promises were broken. The very vengeance of Hitler's little mind we look upon with contempt today became the moving attribute of supposedly great minds in supposedly free democracies.

Our attitude toward the prevailing war is the contest of mind over emotion, hope over fact, reality over imagination. But that doesn't mean we won't get into it. We probably will get into it.

And Coventry has been in itself a good push.

Giving Quacks the Limit

The federal courts have sentenced several operators of a cancer cure down in Arkansas to prison for four years. The specific charge was using the mail to defraud in that the proprietors asserted they had discovered a "destroyer" of cancer tissue.

This is one of the most severe penalties ever dealt out to quacks. But the evidence that is produced concerning these alleged cancer cures justifies even severer ones. The men involved are utterly heartless. Since they generally have medical training, no one knows any better than they that their alleged cure is a fraud. The class of people upon whom they employ their deceitful arts consists of those generally in desperate mental attitude and agony of body. Quite often their patients are from among the illiterates or those who could not conceive anyone being quite so much like Satan as a smiling gentleman in a white coat who feels their pulse to see how much it holds, and then takes them for everything he can, giving them in return nothing more helpful than a pinch of snuff.

Science has spent untold millions to solve the riddle of cancer. Thousands of lofty minded men and women are devoting their lives to the alleviation of pain and the postponement of death by contesting the inroads of cancer. Some progress has been made, but it relates largely to the time element. The basic understanding of the curse itself is lacking.

Out of respect for those who are giving their all to help humanity in a genuine sense, every judge should at least double the usual penalty for the quacks.

Opinions of Others

CLEVELAND SAID:
Grover Cleveland was another great Democrat who, following the views of Jefferson and Jackson, favored a Constitutional amendment limiting a president to a single term of office. He stated the case against presidential reeligibility in prophetic language:

"When we consider the patronage of this great office, the allurements of power, the temptation to retain public office once gained, and, more than all, the availability of party funds in an incumbent whom a horde of officeholders, with a zeal born of benefits received and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political assistance, we recognize in the eligibility of the president for reelection the most serious danger to that calm, deliberate, and intelligent action which must characterize a government by the people."—From "The Third Term Principle and Its Significance Today," by Young B. Smith of the New York Bar.—Detroit News.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—French appeasers who favor cooperation with Germany, particularly Vice Premier Laval, are going to have a rude awakening on the arrival of Admiral William Leahy, new U. S. ambassador to Vichy.

Officially inspired French newspapers received Admiral Leahy's appointment as an indication that the United States had decided to play ball with Germany and was veering away from Britain.

But they were so wrong. Inside fact is that Admiral Leahy is one of Roosevelt's most vigorous advisers in favor of helping Britain, and has even urged that a large part of the American navy be sent to Singapore in order to keep an eye on Japan, and serve as a silent warning against Japanese penetration down to the Dutch East Indies.

In the White house conference at which this plan was proposed, Admiral Leahy engaged in a hot argument with Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles, who was opposed to sending the fleet to Singapore and who pointed to the danger of a German naval advance on Dakar and the Azores in the Atlantic.

Admiral Leahy replied that as long as the British fleet held out, there was no need to worry about Dakar and the Azores. But once the British fleet crumbled, he said, then the American navy would be up against the problem of guarding two oceans—which at the present time was impossible.

Therefore Admiral Leahy urged that the United States help Great Britain now before it was too late, especially in the Far East. Keeping Japan in her place, he said, would have a more salutary effect upon the dictators of the world than any other single move the United States could make.

During this White house conference Admiral Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, lamented that the fleet was unprepared because it did not have enough tankers to carry fuel oil across the Pacific. To this Admiral Leahy replied:

"Admiral, did you ever think of picking up the telephone and calling the heads of Standard Oil and Texaco? They have plenty of tankers and they are patriotic citizens who would be glad to lease them to the navy."

This is the type of man Roosevelt is sending to France in an attempt to wean the French over to the British side and tip the balance of war against Hitler.

Note—Secretary Ickes pays tribute to Admiral Leahy as the best governor ever to serve in Puerto Rico, where he has been stationed since his retirement from the navy two years ago.

Most amusing feature of President Roosevelt's refusal to attend the Gridiron club dinner, held in December, is the fact that only four members of the club knew about it. Apparently these four were keeping it secret from the other members until the last minute because it would detract from the club's prestige.

Members of the National Press club, on the other hand, long ago had a pretty good indication that Roosevelt would renege on the Gridiron dinner. The Press club dinner is a democratic affair attended by the several hundred members, and there is nothing exclusive about it. The dress is black tie, not the formal white tie and tails of the Gridiron club, which has an exclusive membership of less than fifty.

So when a delegation from the National Press club called on Roosevelt to invite him to its annual dinner, they found him in a rebellious mood.

"Four press dinners a year are too much," he said in effect. "There's the Press club dinner, the White house correspondents' dinner, and two Gridiron club dinners. The Press club and White house correspondents' dinners are all right, but these Gridiron club dinners . . . I! What's the use of getting yourself down in a white tie for a bunch of stuffed shirts?"

Note—Most of the Gridiron club members are ardent New Deal haters, several belonging to the Willie Brain Trust during the recent campaign. At past dinners, most of their jibes have been aimed against the Roosevelt administration.

The Virgin Islands, always a political teapot, are boiling-over with a new tempest so violent that Governor Lawrence Cramer and his boss, Secretary of the Interior Ickes, are not on speaking terms. Ickes has actually barred Governor Cramer from the interior department, except on official business.

The feud began when Ickes got reports of a breakdown in law and order in the Virgin Islands, and sent an investigator to look into the situation. But without waiting to learn very much about the investigation, Governor Cramer began firing hot letters to Secretary Ickes protesting that, his personal life was being investigated.

Later Governor Cramer came to Washington for a conference with Ickes, and as he was about to leave, Secretary Ickes drawled: "Just one more thing, governor. You've never sunk lower in my estimation—if that's possible."

More recently, Ickes has sent Governor Cramer a letter referring to a "lying" memorandum and issuing this warning: "From now on you will not communicate with me directly nor will you have access to the interior department except on official business. All of your communications shall be addressed to the division of territories and island possessions, which shall decide whether they shall be referred to the assistant secretary or the under secretary of the interior."

Note—Last year Governor Cramer rowed with Secretary Ickes over putting running water and other model improvements in a village for sugar workers. Ickes opposed the plan as impracticable.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

George Sylvester Viereck, pro-German propagandist, had a rough time at the last meeting of the Overseas Press club in New York, of which he is a member. In his presence, Mrs. Ward Cheney, wife of the head of the well-known silk firm, vigorously urged Viereck's expulsion from the club. . . . The Red Cross is seeking 8,000 more first-reserve nurses for its roster of nurses available for active service. The inducements are $70 a month pay, subsistence, 30 days leave and the rank of a second Lieutenant. . . . Representative Clyde Ellis, militant young Arkansas New Dealer, carried all ten counties in his district in the recent election—the first Democratic sweep since the Civil war. Three of the counties are traditionally rock-ribbed Republican, but this time they went for Ellis.

"PINCHED FOR MONEY"

She says, "I'm a little bit pinched for money," But she knows life is good in other ways. She is not pinched for a sky that's sunny. And friendship gladdens her simple days. Love has a path blazed to her door. Faith on her roof in starlight spills. She knows a happy life has more Ways than one to the coaxing hills. She says, "I'm a little bit pinched for money," But smiles as she says it, for she knows We must have wormwood as well as honey But hope for the future breathes and grows!

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—As sure as shooting, steps are going to be taken in the 77th Congress to bring into the union a 49th state.

In case you haven't heard, it's Hawaii. The flag people already have it figured out. The present 48 stars on a field of blue can be rearranged to a 7-7 spacing of the stars without changing the field or making the star pattern look like a crowded section of the Milky Way.

But the flag people have been prepared for "any contingency" for a good long time and probably are two hops and a skip ahead of congress. I doubt if there is a congressman who isn't fully aware that this "organized incorporated territory and integral part of the United States," as Hawaiians are fond of calling it, isn't about as important as any off-shore chunks of terrain that ever fell into the lap of Uncle Sam.

If there is any doubt let one stare for a couple of hours at the islands' production figures on sugar, and pineapple (to mention only a couple) or their consumption figure on mainland tourists (to mention only one).

Nevertheless, this measure to make Hawaii the 49th state is going to meet plenty of opposition—or if not "opposition" exactly, then lethargy and indifference. This isn't my conclusion. It comes from a score or more of representatives and senators, some of whom, to say the least, are supposed to have their fingers on the congressional pulse.

Nobody Can Be Sure Nobody can be sure of anything that will happen in Congress until the votes are in (the majority leaders in both houses were so wrong about adjournment, for instance). But this is the way they look at the statehood-for-Hawaii situation:

(There should be here the brief prelude that the islands, in their recent election, voted 68 per cent in favor of pushing statehood. As soon as the Hawaiian legislature meets and memorializes Congress to that effect, a joint resolution will be introduced, no doubt, which, if passed, would clear the way for the 49th state.)

The military powers that be may not favor statehood at this time. They figure it's easier to handle a territorial government under even limited-emergency conditions than a state. And if anybody doubts the importance of Hawaii in Pacific naval affairs, let him get out his encyclopedia and read up on Pearl Harbor. When peace is on the world and we're scraping ships instead of building them, what the Army and Navy people want doesn't amount to so much. But in times like these, what they want makes a big noise under the Capitol dome and all the congressmen hear, and a lot of the magree.

There is also the problem of racial make-up of the Hawaiian population. According to the Territorial Board of Health estimates for 1940, the population was made up of 135,489 Japanese; 65,291 Hawaiians or part-Hawaiians; 115,836 Caucasians; 52,148 Filipinos; 28,809 Chinese; 6,761 Koreans; and 960 of other nationalities. Of the Caucasians, nearly 31,000 were Portuguese; 7,700 Puerto Rican; and 1,200 Spanish.

The military forces just list them, point to the 36 per cent total of Japanese, raise their eyebrows. Out in the islands, of course, there is an entirely different picture. Nearly 82 per cent are citizens of the United States. Immigration of male Japanese was prohibited after 1908 and there has been no immigration of Japanese—male or female—since 1924. Thus, of the 34,661 Japanese aliens still in Hawaii, there would be only a very, very small number of males who could possibly be of "the dangerous age" from a military standpoint, even if all of them were sympathetic to Japan, which many observers insist they are not.

See Another Trip Some facetious fellows hereabouts say that the upshot of it probably will be another congressional junkie to Hawaii, like that in 1938: that the congressmen will vote "to inspect" the islands again; take a pleasant journey out that way at a seasonable time of year; return and report that they would be very happy to see Hawaii the 49th state and there let the matter rest—at least until the world settles down.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO

Friday, Dec. 3, 1915
Walter Meyer was elected president of Meat Cutters local at a meeting the previous evening. Other officers elected were William Sigl, vice president; William Meyer, financial secretary; Otto Quade, recording secretary; Alex Rededeau, treasurer; Henry Reide, inner guard; Guy Daniel, outer guard.

Traffic on Appleton street was blocked for some time that morning when two freight cars left the track on a siding near the Appleton Malt company plant.

A. J. Shannon and Otto Mossholder were among the local poultry fanciers who were planning to send exhibits to the big poultry show at the Chicago coliseum that month.

10 YEARS AGO
Friday, Nov. 28, 1930
Slow promotion in the army air corps and a shortage in aircraft were cited that day by F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war for aeronautics, as "stumbling blocks" to progress.

Frank B. Kellogg, whose initiative as American secretary of state led to a world ban on wars of aggression, had been awarded the Nobel peace prize for 1929.

Appleton residents shivered on Thanksgiving day as the mercury hovered around 2 degrees below zero, the lowest temperature recorded here on "Turkey day" in 10 years.

Madison — It is no criticism of Governor Heil to say that he is a simple man, in the sense that he is who looks at the problem of government — even after two years as a part of the government — from the point of view of the citizen and taxpayer rather than the bureaucrat, he frequently makes points which are far more significant and thought-provoking than the academic and long-winded expostulations of the department heads who come in a steady stream each year to ask for more money than they got the previous year.

Governor Heil's cross-examination of George P. Hambrecht, head of the state department of vocational education, offered an illustrative example.

WHY SO MANY? Hambrecht is a fluent and eloquent official. He could convince almost anybody, by the sheer weight of his long speeches and prepossessing command of his technical educational field, that the state ought to provide many more thousands of dollars for his department. At the same time he has jealously guarded the independence of his particular end of the public school system, and more than any one man has been responsible for the repeated failure of attempts to consolidate state educational agencies. For that reason his experience with Heil at the budget hearing was interesting.

Hambrecht launched into his prepared speech, including presumably sound arguments about the validity of public expenditures for vocational education of farmers. (Incidentally Paul Weis, a vocational board member, made the interesting point that if the public would devote more attention to teaching efficient farming methods, so that farmers would be able to cut their cost of production, state and national legislatures would not be subjected to constant pressure from farm groups for economic legislation inspired by price conditions.)

Heil stopped him short, however, and demanded to know why there were so many independent and competing public agencies striving to school the farmer in agriculture. Why couldn't the existing public educational system in the rural areas with the vocational agricultural schools, the extension services of the state university, the county agent's offices, the college of agriculture, and others?

AN IDEA And he directed Hambrecht to discuss such a consolidation forthwith with other officials in the rural education divisions of the state government.

Julius P. Heil there hit upon an idea which has occurred frequently before to those who have studied the state government and its problems. Indirectly, he revived the idea of a consolidation of the whole public school system in the state, which has been defeated every time it showed up in legislative halls through the pressure power of the interested officials and teachers involved—and from his comments a

PRONE TO REST

Last night, reported a reader October 2, is the first night since last March that I have slept without waking from 11 to 7:30. It is the first night I have tried sleeping prone. Got up feeling 10 and rested. Again March 5 the reader reported: Last night was my fourth night sleeping prone. It seems to be a better remedy than any of the doctor's prescriptions for insomnia. For the first time I awakened in the night but just enough to turn my twisted head on the other ear. I find a soft cloth such as a single thickness of woolen scarf or the tail of a sweater spread over the sheet under the head is more comfortable—lying on the hard sheet sometimes makes the rim of the ear sting. When my face is to the right I place the back of my left hand across the small of my back—just as a convenient place to put it. I owe you my thanks for the suggestion of sleeping prone. (R. D. L.)

Before we become confused it may be well to consult Webster—who says prone means lying with face and belly on a line with or upon the earth, floor or bed. Webster drags the face in just to be properly prudish. Let vulgar O! Doc Brady say that as long as the belly is on the ground, floor or bed the face may be turned in any direction. Lying on the back is supine.

It is all right to sleep with a high pillow or several of them, or with a very thin pillow, or with none, if you like.

It is all right to sleep heading north, south, east, west or in any intermediate direction.

It is all right to have the head of the bed a bit higher than the foot.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Borne

The second in the 1940 series of American Thanksgivings was held yesterday. A lot of folks went sparingly on the turkey, however, so they would have some appetite in reserve in case a third one bobs up. Up to a late hour last night no word had come from Washington to indicate that this Thanksgiving wouldn't be the final for this year.

I see that in the New York election, according to an announcement by the board of elections, the write-in vote showed people voted for Rin Tin Tin, Mac West, Bing Crosby, Sally Rand, Papadopolos and Winklergreen for president. Considering the shape the country is in I doubt if Rin Tin Tin would take it. Bing Crosby might have won, though, if he had been a candidate. Our reactions to the radio being what they are, Mac West would have done well, too, on form alone. I don't know how Mac West stands on a two-ocean navy. But I guess she's for it. I know one thing about Mac: If she was president she wouldn't have anybody like Ickes hanging around the White House. And she would dispose of Wallace, too.

Sally Rand would have made a great run if she'd been in the race. With her at the head of the government you wouldn't even think about the economic problem or the budget. I'm surprised Olsen and Johnson didn't get any vote.

bystander could conclude that he would favor such a plan.

The governor can't understand why one day he is asked for $320,000 to subsidize 4-H clubs, carrying on rural educational programs and demonstrations, while on the next day an entirely different and independent department comes in to ask for $150,000 for another rural school project. And many other folks don't entirely understand either.

or vice versa, if you prefer it that way.

It is as healthful for any one, even a person with heart disease, to sleep on the right side as it is to sleep on the left side. Notions that the heart has more work to do when an individual lies on one side or the other are without foundation in anatomy or physiology.

Sleep on mattress or springs as soft and flexible or as hard and unyielding as you prefer.

But beware of sagging beds, springs or mattress. There is an astonishingly common and, as a rule neglected cause of restless sleep, to say nothing of backaches, sacroiliac strain, sciatica, imaginary "female trouble", pelvic disorders in men.

A rough-and-ready test to determine whether it is time to junk the sleeping equipment and install twentieth century equipment in its place, may be made by placing some boards or slats across the middle third of the bed, between springs and mattress and sleeping for a night or two with the sag so removed.

Shaded Bids Often Cause Penalties

BY ELY CULBERTSON

For many years I have hammered away in this column, and elsewhere, at the great advantages to be gained from low penalty doubles and from their corollary actions, penalties, passes to takeout doubles. Judging from certain questions in the recent self-rating examinations, it appears that my preaching bore comparatively little fruit. Question 24, particularly, drives me to this admission. The question was:

Both sides vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

West North East South
1 heart Pass 1 no trump Pass
2 no trump Double Pass

You are South, and hold:
K10555 ♠ 62 ♦ A104 ♣ Q42

What call do you make?

Less than 20 per cent of the answers reaching me agreed with my decision that South should pass. The overwhelming majority preferred to bid two spades to response to North's double, although there were scattered votes for three spades and for the remarkable call of two no trump.

Special pains were used in the original framing of this question, that is, South's distribution and his precise card holding were carefully calculated, as were the vulnerability conditions. My problem was to give South plenty of strength to justify the hope of defeating one no trump substantially and yet to avoid giving him so much that he could reasonably expect to make a game for his own team. I thought I had succeeded. Or is it possible that the spade bidders did not even think about the potential advantages of a penalty pass? To me they seem obvious enough. South has a very obvious card suit to open; a suit that may quickly become established and cashed through the medium of his sure entry in diamonds and possible entry in clubs. South is far from powerful in the minor suits, but his strength is sufficient to assure any fear that the opponents will be able to run off a great many tricks in either of those suits.

So much for the defensive possibilities. Now let us consider what is to be gained from a two spade bid on South's part. (Surely, he cannot dream of making a stronger bid.) If South bids two spades, North cannot possibly visualize a hand as strong as South's and even if he holds fair spade support and reasonable outside strength, he will be quite unable to take any action. If North has poor support for spades, a mere two spade contract may be too high. Hence, the best that can be expected from offensive action on South's part is a part-score, and this can scarcely compensate for the penalty that is the next thing to certain if South permits the one no trump doubled contract to stand.

The bidding:

South West North East
1 spade 2 diamonds 3 clubs 4 hearts
5 spades 6 diamonds 7 clubs 8 pass
9 no trump 10 double 11 pass

North and South cooperated to reach the wrong slam contract. Six clubs would have been a laydown with the successful spade finesse.

West opened the king of diamonds and, when the dummy was spread, East saw at a glance that all he need do to beat the slam was protect his spade king from a finesse. Therefore, playing that the diamond lead was from A-K instead of K-Q, East put in the ten of diamonds, demanding a continuation. West blindly obeyed orders, continuing with the diamond ace. Declarer now was helpless. He had to ruff the second lead in dummy and, with only one trump remaining there, could not trap East's twice-guarded spade king.

Had East been asleep, and passively played the deuce or trey of diamonds on the first trick, West undoubtedly would have shifted to hearts, whereupon the contract would have become a virtual laydown.

Beauty and You

By Patricia Lindsay

Americans are considered a roving race. They think nothing of dashing miles for a weekend visit, or taking a cross-country tour in a ten day holiday! So naturally much thought has been given by commercial designers to creating bags and carry-alls for the grooming aids and a meticulous lady needs enroute and after she arrives.

Most recent among these innovations is a bag which resembles a man's collar bag, but deeper and more spacious and with little diagonal zipper pockets on the outside for these little things like curlers, hair pins, safety pins, fresh powder puffs and the like, which make a mess of packing if they are thrown in with one's creams and brushes. It will be the delight of many a woman come Christmas, and if you haven't yet thought of the perfect gift for a nomadic lady of college girl—here is a hot tip!

The one pictured above comes in red or peacock blue, white and black, velvet stripes, or multi-colored stripes. Tucked away in its convenient pockets are cologne, talc, sachet, soap, perfume, lipstick, rouge and mascara, and a plastic powder container with puff. There is still room for your other favored and essential aids!

What to Take Along
If you are planning a jaunting aid you might as well need. If you are in the habit of using three creams at home don't figure you can get along with one while you are traveling or after you reach your destination. The trick is to take along a bag or case which will accommodate all the aids you habitually use and perhaps a few you will find very handy while you roam.

Space may be saved by carrying a slimmer hair brush, smaller quantities of creams and lotions (for those which come in capsules), a combined manicure and pedicure set, handkerchief size tissues, harmonized make-up in a small box and that which comes in an artist-type paint box offering you a selection of shades. Take a few minutes and inspect cosmetics which are packaged specifically for the traveler—you will be surprised at the suggestions offered you.

Be Meticulous
From the day you leave home until you return, you should be meticulous in your grooming. No short-cuts should be condoned. It is possible to keep as sweet-smelling, as smooth skinned, as lustrous of hair on a plane or train or boat, as it is at home, providing you carry adequate beauty aids. You will enjoy your trip more and perhaps lure romance if you present a perfectly groomed person to your fellow voyagers! It is a delightful feeling to be caught not looking your most lovely when you meet an old friend, or when you are invited impromptu to join a party for a lark. Keep groomed always, then you will be prepared for whatever pops up on your trip.

Miss Lindsay has added to her well-known perfume list key-words to moods and personalities. Write for it care of this paper and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

Good Taste Today

HAVE WAITER ACT

To most of the letters asking whether it is expected that one lady pick up the belongings that another lady unknowingly drops while walking on the street or while sitting in any public place, the answer is "No"—unless the one-to-the-rescue is young and the other one much older. It is enough, otherwise, to attract her attention—and let us hope for her sake, in some way short of attracting the attention of every one else as well! Either touch her arm, or if she is out of reach, motion to her, or perhaps relay the message through some one within hearing distance of you and telling distance to her.

In a restaurant, of course, if you noticed that a glove or a scarf or even a handbag has fallen on the floor, you would call a waiter and ask him to give it to its owner.

Dinner-Dance vs. Dinner and Dance
Dear Mrs. Post: What is the difference between a dinner-dance and a dinner and dance?

Answer: A dinner-dance means that the tables are placed around the room and that people dance between courses as well as afterward. A dinner and dance means dinner first and dancing elsewhere. Or it might be in the same room after the tables have been cleared away.

The Best Man Has a Fiancee
Dear Mrs. Post: John and Josephine are to be married. They both have so many relatives that they have to limit the wedding lists just to immediate families and a few dearest friends because they can't afford to include all the others. In view of this situation, does Henry's fiancee have to be invited to the wedding and the breakfast? Henry is the best man. His fiancee has no personal interest in the wedding, except in Henry.

Answer: Yes, I think you would have to invite Henry's fiancee—if their engagement has been announced. If it has not been announced, then to invite her, and not his family, would quite definitely announce it.

Substitute Host
Dear Mrs. Post: At a small dinner when there is no host but there are other men present, should the hostess take the man's place and do the carving and fill the plates, or should she ask one of the men, whom she knows is accustomed to carving at home, to take her husband's place?

Answer: She should ask a man to be substitute host at the table. That is, he would take the host's place. He would not, however, stand with her to welcome the guests or to say good night to them.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Intelligent Army Is Best For Defense of Country

BY ANGELO PATRI

We are about to raise an army for the defense of the republic. Our youth is being commanded to shoulder arms. To my mind the best defense this country can have is an intelligent citizenry. All the drill that could possibly be crammed into the years of military training would be useless unless the minds of the soldiers were enriched and developed to the highest possible degree. I have no good word for the idea that a soldier is not to think. Tomorrow's soldier is going to think and think straight and fast if he is to stay a live soldier, and this is living nation.

It is good to train our young people to work together for a common purpose, to live simply, follow a routine, obey those placed in authority. Skill in military matters will be worth while for them to acquire even if they are never called upon to use it in war. But there ought to be more to that in army and navy life. There should be a continuation of education for all enlisted men and officers so that by the end of the training period, when military service is completed, the men will return to civil life better able to take their places than when they left.

Training Period Should Not be a Stepgap

The young people do not relish leaving home, jobs, study, old associations and cherished plans for living to enter the army. It is not that they fear physical injury so much as they fear loss of place and power back home. If they knew that they were to continue to grow in skill, ability and power they would not feel so badly about the matter. If they knew that they would have opportunity for growth in ways that would improve their social and financial status after their period of service was over, they would rejoice. The morale of the group would be higher, there would be fewer disciplinary cases and fewer patients in the infirmary.

It seems to me that we owe this education to the boys we take from their usual way of life to serve our need. The cost would not be too much. The camp itself is the educational institution. The officers are the instructors, and if there are not enough of the kind needed more can be recruited from industry and education.

Intelligent Man the Toughest
We are continually being told that in the new life of tomorrow we shall need to be "tough." I know of no tougher thing on earth than an idea born of an intelligent mind. If we develop that idea until it becomes an ideal, and if we train our boys and enrich their minds, increase their skills and discipline their way of life, we shall have a force that no enemy can ever destroy.

There is no reason why our army and navy cannot be used as educational forces through which our boys acquire culture, skills, ideals of service beyond those which are usually set by military training. We want intelligent men first. The rest comes easily.

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

There are thousands of gullible children in long pants, just like Merton in today's Case Record. They believe in fairies and Santa Claus. They think they can EARN their way to success and fortune, for-getting that you must EARN all such rewards. Even the owners of gambling halls refuse to patronize rival gambling houses, for they know you cannot win. Merton's wife should take his pay check and limit him to lunch money and car fare only, until he grows up emotionally and is a man.

CASE S-141: Merton P., aged 28, has an attractive blonde wife.

"We are losing our furniture," she sobbed, "because Merton cannot refrain from gambling."

"He loses money at poker and on the ponies. He bets on baseball and football scores. In fact, he'll wager with anybody on anything."

"I had over $1,000 saved before we were married, and we paid that on a little home of our own. But we couldn't keep up the payments, so we lost that."

"And now we are losing our furniture. It isn't because he doesn't work, for he has a good job. But he loses money every week at betting. Dr. Crane, what can we do?"

"I love him and don't want to go back to my parents. Besides, I think he loves me, but it must be quite selfish, don't you think, to bring all this upon me?"

DIAGNOSIS:
Gamblers are juvenile. They have never grown up emotionally, but are living at the level of children who still believe in Santa Claus and fairies.

They think that their very hope for wealth and fame will of itself make the dice roll in their favor or the cards fall into a royal flush. They are as gullible as children in this regard. Youngsters also tend to think that they can gain

The Road to Shani Lun

By Rita Mohler Hanson

YESTERDAY: Lynn Britton, a captive on the way to a "visit" with a great Mongolian prince, has made innumerable trials at escape, and failed. But now she believes she has found a friend in the French mechanic of the party, who has agreed to meet her at the camp well, at midnight. But he does not appear, and Lynn finds herself shrinking from the shadows which seem to follow her.

Chapter 13
PROTECTING HAND

Then another shadow and another—menacing forms of the large camp dogs.

Lynn had heard dreadful things about these huge, black Mongolian mastiffs with ruffs on their necks, giving them the ferocious appearance of lions. They scavenged the fields of the dead and sometimes did not wait for a man to die. She began to run as fast as she could through the dragging sand and made for a huge boulder that loomed ahead along the edge of the dry wash. With her back to this, she might fight the dogs off for a while.

She stumbled and fell, then got up and staggered on, and finally fell again and lay for a moment paralyzed with fear at a sudden, quick pattering of feet through the sand behind her.

A hand was laid on her shoulder and withdrawn.

"Have you had enough?" asked Temu Darin, dropping the rein of his pony and crouching down beside her.

"She tried to struggle to her feet. The dogs!" she gasped.

"My dogs won't hurt you," he said, throwing a rug over her shoulders and folding it across her breast.

She knelt there facing him. "What a failure I am!" she sobbed, trembling uncontrollably.

"You're struggling against big odds," he remarked reasonably. "Insurmountable odds, if only I could make you believe it, Lynn. Why wear yourself out like this?"

She sat and looked at him while regaining her breath and self-control. Finally she shook her head in despair.

"I am an American girl. I was born free. I feel the equal of men when it comes to personal freedom. I want to be master of my own fate. I'm not like your Eastern women." She made a little gesture of futility. "Oh, I suppose I cannot make you understand."

He bent towards her and held her gaze. "I've known American girls before you. I think I understand them very well. If you'd trust them a little more and your scheming intellect a little less—" he stopped. "I'm the one who cannot make you understand."

He rose and drew the horse to him, helped Lynn into the saddle, and sprang up behind her, heading the horse towards camp.

"That Chinese trading post you were making for—it would have been better for the dogs to get you."

"I'll escape you somehow," she promised, through teeth set against their chattering, "sometime, somewhere."

'Amazons' Roll Rocks on Italian Troops to Help Greeks Triumph

Salonika, Greece.—(AP)—An "Amazon company" of Macedonian peasant women who helped the Greek army defeat 3,000 Italian troops by rolling rocks down upon them from the peaks of the Pindus mountains was described today in a Greek dispatch from the Epirus front.

More than 100 women were reported by a Greek correspondent to have followed a Greek army column against the orders of an officer, and to have fought with the soldiers.

The correspondent quoted one middle-aged farm woman, Helen Codjani, who was wounded during the fighting, as telling him: "A sergeant who passed through our village wanted to know the way to the chapel of St. George. We told him and when he started off about 100 women took the trail after him. When we neared the chapel, we saw many Greek soldiers. When the officer saw us, he got very angry and ordered us to go back, but we started shouting: 'We shall not go back. We want to fight with you.'"

"Since they wouldn't give us guns, we got hold of an ammunition magazine and trench mortars, and we followed the soldiers to the high peaks of the mountains."

"During the night other women joined us. We didn't lose a single minute, and when night fell our troops have occupied all summits and we were now waiting. We women took our places on the plateau of a mountain called Pour-nara."

"Next morning at 10 o'clock, Italians appeared in a ravine below us. Our soldiers let them advance. When about 3,000 enemies thus entered the gorge, our soldiers started shooting."

"The Italians began to scatter and ran in all directions. Then we went into action and appeared at the extremity of the mountain and began throwing stones on the invaders. That was a terrible shower."

"When the sun set in the ravine there was not a single Italian alive."

Telephone Co. Told to Drop Extra Charge

Must End 8-Cent Levy But Installation Cash Not Refundable

Madison.—(AP)—The Wisconsin Telephone company was ordered by the public service commission today to discontinue its extra charge of 8 cents a month for handset or cradle telephones.

At the same time the commission granted the company additional income from new service connections in offices and homes not equipped with telephones by providing that no deposits for installation would be refundable.

The order, to become effective with the first billing date after Dec. 31, will mean a net loss of $85,000 in revenue for the utility.

Subscribers who now have handset instruments will save $162,000 a year, while the company will derive additional income of $77,000 from service connection charges, the order said.

Charge Excessive

"The handset telephone has now become essentially a standard instrument which should be supplied at standard rates," the commission stated. "The 8 cent monthly charge being in excess of the special cost involved in supplying and maintaining handset instruments for standard service, is excessive and unreasonable as well as unjustly discriminatory as between the company subscribers."

The commission first ordered discontinuance of the handset charges in October, 1938, but the company asked for a rehearing and it was held in abeyance because the general telephone rate case was pending at that time.

Meanwhile the utility had been required to segregate the amount of extra charges collected and this figure totaled $273,257 to date. In its final ruling the commission held the company was entitled to keep this money because the original order was not effective after the request for a rehearing. The rehearing had been completed last September.

The new schedules for installations will vary at different exchanges, but in no case will the charges be refundable as at present.

In some cities installation costs will remain at the present figure while reductions are provided in other communities. Short period subscribers are expected to provide most of the additional income.

New Michigan Chief Declares He Won't Oust Republicans

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—Murray D. Van Wagoner, Democratic governor-elect, declared today his administration would not bring a wholesale housecleaning of Republicans from the state's payroll.

Van Wagoner said he would keep secret until Jan. 1, inauguration day, the names of key appointees who would go into office with him.

The governor-elect told newsmen his administration would be "practical" with the thought in mind that he must recognize the handicap of working with a Republican dominated legislature.

Van Wagoner said he considered reorganization of the state department of agriculture, to place a staggered commission at its head in place of the present one-man commissioner, would be his most important contribution to government, with a consolidation of tax collecting agencies ranking second.

He said he would appoint a commissioner of agriculture at the start of his administration to head the department, then seek the creation of a commission to supplant him.

The governor-elect said he would go into office with the thought that local law enforcing officers would be expected to enforce the anti-gambling laws, but that the state police should take over enforcement in any area where violations persisted.

U. S. Orders 11 Dealers to Stop 'Unfair Methods'

Washington.—(AP)—Eleven Wisconsin building supplies dealers and companies were ordered by the federal trade commission yesterday to cease "certain unfair methods of competition."

The companies, whose total business averages about $5,000,000 annually, were ordered to discontinue a "combination for the maintenance of uniform and minimum prices, and the use of boycott and coercion to prevent competing dealers from attaining building supplies," the commission said.

Named in the order, which claimed they had from 90 to 100 per cent of the building supplies business in Milwaukee county, were:

Wauwatosa Fuel and Supply company, Tews Lime and Cement company, W. H. Pipkorn Company, Bertel Fuel and Supply Company, Henry Cook Company, the Foreman corporation, Schneider Fuel and Supply Company, Heider and Bott Company, Otto Ladwig and Sons, Inc., J. Druecker Sons' Company, and Walter J. Manhardt, trading as Capitol Building Supply Company, all of Milwaukee.

An order against Phil J. Bliffert, building supply dealers' consultant who died last year, was dismissed.

In 1936, the commission found, there was a meeting in Milwaukee of about 18 building supplies dealers who entered into individual contracts with Bliffert.

As a result of this contract and agreement, the commission said, prices, discounts and conditions of sale of building material in Milwaukee county, until a recent date, had been generally uniform. Bids of the dealers submitted to procurement officers of the federal government and to purchasing agents of the city of Milwaukee also were said to be generally uniform.

About 500 Persons Present at Safety Program in Kimberly

Kimberly.—Despite the heavy snowfall approximately five hundred persons attended the second of a series of four safety programs at the high school last night. The first part of the program opened with movies for the women in the gymnasium while the men attended a meeting in the various classrooms to discuss what causes accidents. Each room had a chairman in charge.

The groups in the various rooms were given a list of the 12 causes of accidents. After the chairman read the description of an accident, the audience was asked to help check the causes. Chairmen were George Hanks, Paul Kuehn, C. R. Laut, L. E. Meyer, O. A. Reinke, E. F. Walsh and A. D. Wilkinson.

At 8:30 the entire group assembled in the gymnasium where the high school band under the direction of Gordon Kotkosky, opened the program. W. H. Webb, chairman in charge, introduced F. F. Martin, director of the Kimberly board of vocational and adult education. Mr. Martin discussed vocational and adult education in Kimberly and in Wisconsin.

Chick Thomas, comedian, who appeared at the National Safety Congress this summer, provided plenty of laughter to the large crowd, when he told of his experience in the army in 1917. Visiting guests were persons from Lakeview and Badger Globe mills and the Main office, Neenah, and from the Niagara, Wis., mill.

The Rev. Russell T. Peterson, Weyauwega, will preach at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning at the regular 10:30 services. The Sunday school services will be held at 9:30 Sunday morning while the Christian Endeavor will meet at 6:30 in the evening. The Rev. L. C. Smith was the former pastor. He is now at La Crosse.

One More Day of Deer Hunting Is Left for Nimrods

More Hunters Report Successful Shooting As Season Nears End

Reports of successful deer hunting trips into the northwoods lauded today as hunters returned who went to the wrong areas for deer. Only one more day of the 1940 deer season remains after today and hunters who got back yesterday and today say the weather is ideal for the major hunting sport.

August Mancl, route 2, Appleton, was one of those who went to the right place. He shot his deer last Sunday near Fifield while hunting with his son, Robert. The animal had eight points and weighed 180 pounds.

Charles Steidl, captain of the county traffic squad, returned last night from a trip to the north woods, bringing back with him a 5-point, 152-pound buck he shot Monday morning near Arbutus lake in Forest county. Hunting with Steidl were Arthur Dietrich and Elwin Braun, Stephentown.

George Oudenhoven, 223 E. College avenue, and Frank Weyenberg, Little Chute, were the two successful hunters in a party of nine which returned yesterday. Oudenhoven shot a 185-pound buck and Weyenberg a 175-pound animal. Both kills were made Tuesday. The party hunted near Kettuck lake.

Carl Wolfinger was the first Darrow hunter to return with a prize from the north. He shot a 200-pound 10-point buck near Rhineland Tuesday.

A party of Combined Locks men returned Tuesday from the vicinity of Eagle River with three deer. They were Urban and William Wittenberg, Adrian Wynboom, John Dercks, C. Wiedenhaupt, and Arthur Gossens.

Glen Barker Wins Parole; Released From Penitentiary

Glen Barker, Shiocton, who was sentenced to a 14 to 25 year term in August 1937, for second degree murder, this week was placed on parole, according to Mark Catlin, Jr., Appleton attorney, who recently was successful in having Barker's term commuted to 4 to 7 years.

Barker was sentenced after he pleaded guilty of fatally stabbing Miss Helen Welhouse, Kimberly, in the throat with a jackknife after she spurned his attentions. The slaying took place at a dance hall at Twelve Corners August 8, 1937.

Barker visited Catlin yesterday, following his release from state prison at Waupun.

Dies Confers With President

Will Continue to 'Expose' Subversive Elements, He Says

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Dies (D-Texas) of the house committee on un-American activities conferred with President Roosevelt today and said later that he proposed to continue his "exposure" of subversive elements.

The Texan declined to comment directly on his discussions with the president, but said he knew of nothing which would alter his program.

Asked whether he had a satisfactory conference, Dies told newspapermen:

"Yes, to me."

He said he had made no plans to confer with Attorney General Jackson about procedure to curb subversive activities and to detect fifth-column agents.

Earlier in the week, the president told Dies in a telegram that a legislative investigating committee and government administrative agencies each had its proper place and suggested that Dies confer with justice department agents.

On his arrival today from Texas, before the conference, Dies pledged "fullest cooperation" to the president and expressed confidence that an effective program against fifth-column activity "can be worked out with the executive department."

Order Made Permanent On Coal Freight Rates

Milwaukee—(AP)—Word was received here Friday that the interstate commerce commission has made permanent its order equalizing the railroad freight rates on coal shipped into Wisconsin in carload lots from out-of-state points bordering the state.

The order provides that coal shipped into Wisconsin from Duluth takes the same rates as that shipped to Wisconsin points from Superior. A similar equalization applies Marinette rates to coal coming from Menominee and Escanaba, Mich.

Where coal shipped from such points as Milwaukee and Superior is routed through some other state in reaching another Wisconsin point, the order provides that the all-Wisconsin rate shall apply.

Wants Former U. S. Presidents to be Life-Time Senators

Washington—(AP)—A proposal that former presidents of the United States be made life-time senators-at-large was advanced today by Senator Wiley (R-Wis.).

Serving notice he would reintroduce in the next congress his constitutional amendment which would limit the presidential tenure to one six-year term, Wiley said he probably would incorporate a clause making senators of retiring presidents. This provision would be retroactive.

"Any man who has served in the White House," Wiley said, "ought to be a valuable member in the senate. It would provide him with one forum where he could be heard and his knowledge of foreign affairs probably would result in his being appointed to the foreign relations committee."

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., C. E. Saecker, president of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce, and other officials of the city have written the national Jace president, Mark Matthews, New York city, expressing their approval of the town council plan and appreciation at the selection of Appleton as a test city.

Retires From Paper Industry—E. L. Small, 308 W. Prospect avenue, who became chief engineer for the Fox River Paper company 20 years ago, has retired. Mr. Small is shown at his home, holding a plaque given him by the maintenance department of what is now the Fox River Paper corporation. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

E. L. Small, Chief Engineer For Fox River Firm, Retires

BY DON ANDERSON

He was born in 1870 in Lewiston, Maine, and raised in Davenport, Ia. He returned to the east, to Boston, for his advanced schooling. He worked until he was middle-aged in the east.

Then, 20 years ago, E. L. Small, 308 W. Prospect avenue, came to Appleton to become chief engineer for the Fox River Paper company. That was in August of 1920.

Not long ago the maintenance division of what is now the Fox River Paper corporation gave him a plaque. That was at the time of his retirement. Mr. Small, who likes to remember moose and deer hunting expeditions in Maine, retired on Nov. 1. He hasn't been deer hunting for a long time, but he still ranks hunting, along with fishing, as his most popular diversion.

Mr. Small came to the Fox River Paper mill from Holyoke, Mass., where he was employed by the American Writing Paper company.

Since he became chief engineer for the Fox River firm, he has directed construction work that wrought deep changes and improvements in the firm's physical properties.

Soon after he arrived in Appleton, he planned the revamping of the Telulah mill. Two years after his arrival in 1920, new hydro-electric equipment, including four water wheels, was installed.

Then there was the rebuilding of No. 2 mill to make it conform to modern requirements and the installation of new beaters and washers. He supervised the construction of a machine shop and filter plant at the Fox River firm in 1926. That same year he was busy with the construction of the dam that was completed in 1927.

It was a new boiler house in 1923 and 1928 and, lastly, needed changes to the "skyline" of No. 3 mill. And all the time there were numberless improvements to be made to the plant.

He's been a busy man, but his retirement doesn't mean idleness. A man like Mr. Small can't sit around and do nothing, even if that's all he's expected to do.

Woman Hurt in Traffic Crash

Automobile, Truck Collide at Top of Hill Near Winchester

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau) Oshkosh—Mrs. Louis Boltz, Sr., Medford, suffered a possible skull fracture when the car in which she was riding, driven by Elmer Joers, 36, Milwaukee, and a truck driven by Willard Hoffman, route 1, Larsen, crashed at the top of a hill on Highway 110, three miles south of Winchester, at 10 o'clock this morning.

Joers suffered a lacerated knee and another passenger in the Joers car, Herman Streib, Sheboygan Falls, suffered a neck injury.

Joers and Streib were returning from a deer hunting trip and going south on Highway 110 when the accident occurred. The truck came onto the road from a driveway, county police said.

The horns of two trucks, shot by the men, were broken off in the collision.

Indigestion among chicken snakes hereabouts.

One farmer found a snake attempting to eat a nest egg made of glass. Several of the same type were missing from other nests.

State Capitol Buildings Use 7,000 Tons of Coal Annually

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

Madison—As the one occasion during the biennium when state capitol officials unburden themselves and tell the stories of the activities and problems, the record of the state government financial group, headed by Governor Heil, which is now holding hearings in the capitol, is piling up a mass of miscellaneous information on state affairs.

Under the careful probing of the chief executive and his experienced administrative and legislative aides, state departments are telling how they spent the money they got two years ago, what they have accomplished, what remains to be done, and why they want more funds for the next two years.

In the process, the official stenographer is taking down an interesting miscellany of information, as for example:

The effect of the state's long-time war against syphilis, according to Dr. C. A. Harper, state health officer, is shown in the fact that of the first 500 young men examined in Wisconsin for military service, recently, only one showed a positive reaction under test. . . . State officials are working on a plan to centralize care of tuberculosis patients in various state institutions, including the two homes for the feeble-minded, at the regular state tuberculosis facility at Wales, in Waukesha county. . . . The federal social security agency is preparing to provide a portable tuberculosis x-ray machine for use in Wisconsin under direction of the state board of health. . . .

More than 4,500 cases were given service through the state rehabilitation division during the last year. . . . County agricultural schools, a common idea a score of years ago, have dwindled steadily in number until today there are only three remaining, in Racine, Wood and Dunn counties. . . . Local units of government are getting only a 30 per cent reimbursement from the state for vocational educational services, although the law contemplates 50 per cent. . . . There are about 33,000 high school graduates in Wisconsin annually. . . . It takes 7,000 tons of coal each winter to heat the state capitol buildings. . . . The state board of tax appeals has disposed of 384 cases, practically clearing its calendar, since its creation in 1938, and has collected about $600,000 in back taxes during that period. . . .

New Court for Bike Offenders Opens Saturday

Assistant Chief to Serve as Judge for Sessions at Menasha

Menasha — The bicycle court established by the Menasha council at its meeting Nov. 19 will hold its first session at 9 o'clock Saturday morning in the council chambers of the city hall. George Resch, assistant chief of police, has been named "judge" of the court.

Members of the Menasha police force have been issuing summons to violators of the bicycle ordinance during the last week, notifying them to appear at the court. The judge has the power to impound a bicycle up to 15 days.

The summons list 13 violations. The ordinance prohibits more than one on a bicycle, clinging to moving vehicles, trick and stunt riding, riding without hands on handle bars, racing, having a trailer or hand-truck attached to the bicycle, parking on the sidewalk, failure to obey a stop sign or traffic signal, riding without lights, riding on the sidewalk, riding more than two abreast, failure to signal, and failure to have the bicycle registered.

When a policeman catches an offender he lists the name, address, and age of the person as well as the registration number of the bicycle and also checks the offense. A similar report is completed and turned over to the judge along with the name of the arresting officer.

Ask Parents' Aid

The back of the summons calls attention of the parents to the fact that police departments and parents in many municipalities are co-operating in a safety campaign to equip cyclists with identification plates for bicycles. The plates assist in identification in case of accident, detect theft of bicycles, and help inculcate safe riding practices for future driving safety.

The bicycle court applies to those offenders under 21 years of age. Any offenders who fail to heed the summons or who fail to appear in justice court. The provision for the bicycle court in the ordinance was prepared by Aldermen Paul Laemmrich, Edward Zeininger and John Pinkerton.

No Draftees Will Be Called in Next Month, Ritger Says

Menasha — No men will be drafted for army service during December from district No. 3 of Winnebago county, according to information received by Arthur Ritger, secretary of the draft board.

However, the board will continue to send out questionnaires until all men holding order numbers up to 801 have been sent. The board Thursday sent 50 more questionnaires covering that group of men holding order numbers 481 to 500, and will continue to send them out at the rate of 50 a day.

Ritger warned all registrants to return their questionnaires on time. The questionnaires are stamped with the day they are sent out and the day by which they must be returned and Ritger said the board will "get tough" with those who fail to return them on schedule.

Eldon Blohm, who had charge of the first group of three men drafted from this district, who were sent to the induction center at Milwaukee last Friday, reported back to the board yesterday. Gordon Seager, 1800 Greenwald avenue, Neenah, failed to pass the physical examination at Milwaukee and has been sent home.

At Milwaukee the selectees had a second physical examination and filled out papers. Tuesday they were transferred to Fort Sheridan, Ill., where they had to fill out more questionnaires. Blohm reported that the men may be sent to Minnesota.

561 Vaccinated for Smallpox at Neenah

Neenah — Miss L. Evelyn Scholl, city nurse, reported today that 561 Neenah students were included in the smallpox vaccination clinic. The clinic was concluded this week.

Pupils in McKinley, Lincoln, Roosevelt, Washington, Kimberly, the high school and Trinity Lutheran schools who hadn't been vaccinated before or who hadn't been vaccinated in the last seven years were included in the clinic. Four pupils went to their family physicians for leg vaccinations.

The clinic for toxoid inoculations for diphtheria is in progress and will not be concluded until Dec. 31, Miss Scholl reported.

Adults Must Prepare Children For World Problems, PTA Told

Neenah — "Children are born without much readiness for the job which we adults now control but will turn over to them: control of a tremendous inheritance; and it is the responsibility of every adult to teach and prepare children for acceptance and responsibilities of that job," M. C. Dubbe, superintendent of the Winnebago Children's Country Home, told members of the Washington Parent Teacher association Thursday evening.

The tremendous inheritance, the speaker said, was the physical world which "believe me is some farm; the family of two billion odd relatives, and 'I mean odd in both senses,' which the children will have to live with, complete with and understand; and civilization, 'the heirloom which for generations

Zephyrs Face Manitowoc 5's

St. Mary Cagers to Open Home Season With 3 Games Tonight

Menasha — St. Mary's High school cagers will open their home season with a non-conference game against Manitowoc High school at 8 o'clock tonight at the school gymnasium. A contest between the St. Mary's grade school team and Holy Innocent's grade team, Manitowoc, at 6:30 and another one between the reserves of the two high schools at 7:15 will precede the varsity contest.

Last year the Zephyrs scored a 22 to 21 victory over Manitowoc in their home opener with a fourth-quarter rally. In the second game at Manitowoc the Zephyrs won by a more decisive margin. The Ships have three lettermen back from last year but most of their varsity players are expected to come from last year's reserve squad which was very strong.

Manitowoc trounced Kiel in its first game of the year. While the Zephyrs defeated the St. Joseph Indian school team at Keshena in its first contest, Coach Fred Trish is not satisfied with the progress shown this week. The team was far from impressive Wednesday and finished with only a light drill Thursday.

Probable starters for the Zephyrs will be Johnson at center, Kluba and Ciske at forwards and Burghardt and Taves at guards although W. Griesbach may edge into a starting spot. Between halves Al Kolansky and H. Zimmer will put on a boxing exhibition.

$800,000 Bond Issue for Road Is Voted Down

Supervisors Decide Against Borrowing Money for Highway 41

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh — Following 11 days of debate the Winnebago county board this noon by an 18 to 25 vote turned down a proposal to float an $800,000 issue to help finance construction of proposed Superhighway 41 through the county.

The board still can vote to do the work on "pay as you go" policy or decide not to construct the proposed beltline.

Henry Schultz was the only Neenah supervisor and James Howey and E. C. Sonnenberg, were the only Menasha supervisors to approve the proposed bond issue. All other Twin City supervisors voted against the plan.

Although several supervisors had called for a vote on the bond issue resolution late yesterday afternoon, a motion introduced by Supervisor Robert M. Heckner of Menasha to lay the resolution on the table until this morning passed by a 28 to 10 vote. Heckner stated that he wanted more time to "mull the matter over" before he would vote on the resolution.

Supervisor Edward Sonnenberg of Menasha flashed back that the problem had been before the board for several years and that he didn't see any reason why the agony should be prolonged any more.

The bond issue resolution called for the floating of an $800,000 bond issue to be sold by Winnebago county over a period of five years, the interest on which will be borne by the county as its share of the highway cost. The resolution placed the cost for the superhighway at $2,265,000 with the money to come from these sources: Bond issue, $800,000; state and federal aid, $750,000; and state trunk highway construction allotments, $715,000. The resolution also stated that the money to retire the bond issues would come from the gasoline tax allotments due the county for the past several years and the next few years.

$200,000 This Year

The amount of bonds to be floated by the county, according to the resolution, are: 1940, $200,000; 1941, $200,000; 1942, $250,000; and 1944, $150,000. Retirement would begin in 1946 with $100,000 worth of bonds being retired that year and will continue until 1953 when the last $40,000 of bonds will be retired.

Each of the intervening odd numbered years from 1946 till 1952 will have $120,000 of bonds retired, while each even numbered year will have retired $100,000 in bonds.

The afternoon session yesterday was turned over to appearances before the board by interested persons and groups who argued for and against the bond issue proposal.

Wilbur Sparks, Neenah, asked the board to delay floating a bond issue until the county could afford to build a superhighway and declared it "the height of folly to lay additional burden on the preparedness program."

Mayor George F. Oaks of Oshkosh argued in favor of building the superhighway because the heavy truck traffic through Oshkosh had ruined the streets and had broken the water mains and sewers. The use of relief labor in building the road would greatly help the cities in the county and also the federal government, Mayor Oaks said.

Several Oshkosh labor union representatives asked the supervisors to vote in favor of the superhighway while economy league delegates voiced opposition to the proposed bond issue.

Thomas C. Pattison, secretary of the state highway commission, and D. F. Culbertson, area engineer of the commission's Green Bay office, appeared before the supervisors yesterday to answer any questions regarding either the highway or the bond issue.

Needed For Defense

Pattison stated that the federal government was in favor of building the superhighway through Winnebago county as it regarded the road as strategic for national defense.

"The bureau of public roads of the federal government has approved the project," Pattison stated, "and is willing to spend the money, equal to the state allotment, after the project has been approved. If the money is not spent in Winnebago county, it will be spent elsewhere in the state."

$400,000 For Wages

Answering a question of Supervisor Henry Schultz of Neenah as to how much money will be spent for labor and construction costs, Pattison said that the estimate would be $400,000 for wages, $800,000 for construction materials; and $380,000 for transportation and equipment use.

Several supervisors asked what guarantee the county would have that the state would contribute the necessary funds to retire the bond issue. The highway commission secretary said that the bonds would be retired out of future gasoline tax allotments due from the state and that the state law obligated the commission to retire the bonds before any other highway monies are spent since counties with bond issues had priority on any money to be spent by the state commission.

New London — Dr. George H. Kopp was elected chairman of the New London Associated Charities at its organization meeting at Washington High school Wednesday night. Plans were made to launch work immediately for the distribution of the annual Christmas baskets to New London families.

The Rev. H. P. Rekdast was elected vice chairman; Mrs. Louis Schmalenberg, treasurer; and Mrs. Winifred Day, secretary. Named to the executive board are Dr. Kopp, the Rev. R. R. Holliday, Miss Loretta Rice, Attorney Ormond W. Capener, and Mrs. Carrie Hooper. On the finance committee are Mrs. Louis Schmalenberg, A. L. Severance and H. H. Helms.

Various committee chairmen will be appointed by Dr. Kopp this week and progress of the work will be checked at a meeting of all chairmen at the high school on Thursday evening, Dec. 11.

There were 105 baskets distributed last year and it is expected that only about 80 will be prepared this year, which represents the smallest number since the charities were organized in 1933. The most was 155 baskets in 1934.

Tap Room Team In First Place

Eggers Squad Breaks Tie for Top Position In Refreshment Loop

New London — Eggers Tap Room keggers broke up the tie in the Refreshment league when they trimmed the Miller High Lites three games at Prah's alleys last night while the co-leaders, the Verifies, dropped two games to the Orange Kists. The Eggers squad pounded a 2,502 total, Archie Beaudoin leading with a 539 triple and Bill Eggers hitting a 200 game even. Harold Buss planked a 192 line for the Kists.

Ladies Club League. Meshkes Groceries tied for the lead with Meatz Insurance by trouncing Restle's Garage three games, Meatz's taking two from Lippold and Queeman Grocery. Miss Selma Roloff of the latter nailed the evening's best game of 182 but Mrs. Ben Boese battered Miss Roloff's series by five pins with a 397 total.

Borden League. Four teams deadlocked for leadership in the Borden Farmer league when the Skunk Hollowers came up by white-washing the leading Bear Creekers three games. Lebanon took two games from Royaltown to pair them off, and Ostrander capitalized on two wins over Borden. Black Creek knocked over Maple Creek for two games to tie those two quints for the cellar. Cliff Decker paced the Skunk Hollowers with counts of 540 and 206 while Lebanon keggers produced most of the honor tallies. Elwood Hutchison hit 542 and 193, Art Murphy 205 and 495. On the Maple Creek squad, Les Hutchison banged out a 526 series with a 199 line.

Two More Hunters Return With Bucks

New London — Only two more out of a dozen returning nimrods brought deer back with them last night. Reports by hunters indicate the opposite extreme of conditions exists in the north woods now with too much snow for hunting.

Rudy Ploetz returned last night from Conover with a 180-pound buck, the only successful one in his party of four, including Ferd Gruetzmacher, Orville Gorges and Albert Magdanz.

Kenneth Bretting brought back a 10-pointer he downed near Pembine early in the season. He hunted with a partner from Green Bay and both made good.

Returning from Townsend empty-handed Wednesday were Ed Dobberstein and Marshall Shaw. The rest of their party, including John and Will Cottrell, Ted Laib and Donald Shaw, planned to remain until the end of the season as none of them had anything. Other unlucky hunters were Harry Young, Charles Bressette, Gerald Rohan, Jack Sells, Robert Brisco, and Arvil Burris. The latter gave up the hunt Tuesday although his brother, Mark, of Westborough with whom he hunted, got one.

Sees Danger in Priority Fights For War Planes

Lawrence Says It Tends to Stagnate Commercial Lines

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—The power to establish "priorities" is the power to retard, if not impair, the development of certain lines of industry in America. Hence the announcement of the war departments intention to require that air lines be limited in the number of new commercial planes they can have is a decision of primary importance to the nation.

What it amounts to, of course, is a stagnation of production of commercial airplanes, which cannot be reflected in a retardation of air line growth in America.

If the expansion of commercial aircraft were not in itself vitally related to national defense, the country would not suffer. But the United States leads the world in commercial aircraft production today and can contribute more to the defeat of the Nazis than any other country because commercial aviation has required a highly skilled industry to make airplanes to fly long distances and in all sorts of weather conditions.

A large supply of commercial airplanes is needed for national defense, especially for the movement of troops and for the emergency movement of coast defense units, so any increase in commercial planes is a direct addition to the nation's safety.

But most important is the stimulus which a steady flow of commercial orders gives to the aircraft industry. Britain would not today be crying for more planes of military and naval types if the United States had been able to place with the aircraft manufacturers, orders alongside of those which the commercial companies placed.

Little Production. The record shows, for instance, that in January 1939 engine production had fallen to a low point and that the aircraft manufacturers were greatly in need of army and navy orders. Then 18 months later, the aircraft industry is called upon to multiply its production many times in order to satisfy the military requirements.

It begins to look as if the war department officials who are responsible for an insistence on priority at this moment have taken an arbitrary attitude, forgetting that it was the war department itself in 1918 which encouraged the present system of commercial air lines as a national defense measure.

Information from reliable quarters is that to stagnate the production of commercial planes is not substantially to increase the number of war planes produced, but it may have a deterrent effect on planning for the next three years. The manufacturers cannot depend permanently on military orders and can only make systematic plans if they can figure on a steady growth of the commercial air lines. With the rapid development of air travel and air mail, the steady increase in production of commercial planes becomes the backbone of the aircraft production industry for the long run. Here the latest improvements are designed, and on the airlines, too, are the pilots trained for all kinds of flying. It will be recalled that about five years ago the war department endeavored to operate the air mail lines and tie-line results followed.

Long Range Program. Interference with the commercial aviation industry is one of the first serious evidences the country has been given of the uncoordinated nature of the defense program operation. Instead of summoning the engineers and aircraft makers several months ago to plan a long-range program which would provide for commercial as well as military expansion, the whole problem of production is tackled in hit-or-miss fashion and then when the demand for speed arises, the only suggestion is to cut down on the commercial planes. Little thought is apparently given to the fact that it takes a long time to re-tool from commercial to military planes and that the two operations do not overlap very much. The United States has sufficient potential capacity to take care of all aircraft expansion, provided there is adequate and careful planning and provided that the government itself does not fiddle away its months with amortization plans and punitive tax plans while the industry itself struggles to move ahead.

Constructive Value. The incident will prove of constructive value if it focusses public attention on the loose way in which industrial operations are handled by governmental authorities in connection with the defense program. The present need for accelerated expansion should have been foreseen last summer. But it wasn't. And now somebody has to be the scapegoat for the failure of our military aircraft program to live up to the ballyhoo about large production figures by January 1941. And the net effect may be to bring confusion into an industry that is fearful anyway of a sudden stoppage of military orders, and which can only rely on a steady increase in the demand for commercial airplanes. Surely it would seem that a conference of engineers and manufacturers and government officials might long ago have planned against a sudden stoppage or stagnation of aircraft production for commercial purposes, especially when these purposes are so closely related to the national defense itself.

Hunter Makes His Car Fit Huge Bull Moose

Blue Lake — The half-ton bull moose, shot by William McDermid in Canada, didn't fit into his automobile so McDermid made his car fit the moose.

He returned to town last night, the moose, so weighing down the back end of the car that the headlights pointed skyward.

McDermid had built a three-foot rack out from the rear of the car upon which the animal's head and forebody rested. The rest of the body extended into the car through a large hole which the intrepid hunter made by cutting open the metal body and spreading apart the steel body framework.

The animal's hind feet projected beyond McDermid's right shoulder as he drove home.

The Clintonville Truckers had too much height at center in the person of Sid Felts and the advantage enabled them to defeat the Appleton Elm Tree Bakers here last night, 35 to 29, in the first game of the Valley Home Talent league.

Sunday afternoon Appleton will go to Sturgeon Bay and expects to earn an even break in the standings. The Bays last night lost to Menasha.

The Bakers played the Truckers even last night in the first quarter which ended 11-11. In the second period, the invaders earned a 20 to 17 lead which they increased to 20 to 21 in the third quarter. In the final stanza, Appleton outscored the visitors but couldn't overcome the advantage.

Orville Wonsler paced the Appleton five with four field goals and four free throws for 12 points. Besch got six and Werner six but the Baker centers and guards were woefully weak at the hoop.

For the Truckers, Red Nolan showed 11 points with five field goals while Felts crashed through with another five goals.

Eagles Winners Over Pittsburgh

Davey O'Brien Honored In Final Appearance Before Philly Fans

Philadelphia—(P)—Davey O'Brien said goodbye to Philadelphia as a professional football player yesterday and his Eagle team mates made his departure a happy occasion by defeating Pittsburgh, 7 to 0, for their first victory of the season after nine defeats.

A scant crowd of 5,000 saw O'Brien start the Eagles on the road to victory by returning a punt 23 yards in the last quarter. This slick bit of dodging and sidestepping showed the Steelers deep in their own territory.

Eberle Schultz later recovered Billy Patterson's fumble on the Pittsburgh 17 and on the first play O'Brien handed the ball to Dick Riffe on a reverse.

Riffe found a hole at left tackle and outran the Pittsburgh secondary to reach the end zone. George Somers, who previously had failed in four field goal attempts, booted the extra point from placement.

With less than three minutes to play, O'Brien sewed up the game on the next play when he intercepted Billy Patterson's long pass on his own 33.

O'Brien was given an ovation as he left the field.

Before the game, the 150-pound star was given a silver plaque by Bert Bell, president of the Eagles. O'Brien plays his last game Sunday in Washington against the Redskins, then will become a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

White won 13 games and lost only four for an average of .765. The Columbus left hander had an earned run average of 2.25.

The honor of pitching the most complete games went to Bob Logan, Indianapolis left hander, who had 24 to his credit. He also faced the most batsmen, 1033, and tied with John Lindell of Kansas City for the wins, 18 each.

Harry Kelley of Minneapolis allowed the most hits, 295, while Walt Taucher of the same club appeared in the most games, 53. Jimmy De Shong, of Milwaukee, allowed the most runs, 181. The "losingest" hurler in the circuit was Charles Marrow of Milwaukee, who dropped 19 games while winning eight.

CONN'S FOE—Lee Savold, midwestern heavyweight, will be gunning for a chance at Joe Louis' crown in New York the night of November 29. Light heavyweight king Billy Conn has the same idea, though, and he's the man Savold must get by that night in a non-title bout. A victory would strengthen either's claim for the right to fight Louis.

Bowl Selections Postponed Until After Tomorrow

Defeat of Aggies Is Severe Blow; Still Possibility, However

BY JUDSON BAILEY
New York—(P)—Up until yesterday, tomorrow was just the last weary day of the long and hazardous 1940 football season.

But wonder of wonders, the Texas Aggies went tumbling before a triumphant University of Texas eleven and now all the gold and glory of the post-season "bowl" games hinges on what happens in Saturday's final fight.

The surprising setback of the Aggies, 7-0, on a touchdown in the first minute of their game, cast the finely drawn plans of the various bowl committees into confusion and nothing will or can be decided until the remaining candidates clear their slates.

Texas A. and M.'s first defeat in 20 games apparently knocked the Aggies out of the Rose Bowl and left Stanford, as the Pacific coast representative, to choose between Tennessee, Boston college or some team with a less notable record.

Stanford itself must play California tomorrow, but this affair was not expected to place much of a burden on the Indians' perfect record.

Boston had to hurdle Holy Cross and Tennessee conquer Vanderbilt, however, to retain their untarnished appearance and both engagements were fraught with the same danger of tradition that struck in Texas yesterday.

They're All A Question

As long as the Rose Bowl ingredients remain in doubt, none of the other bowls can make a move. New Orleans Sugar Bowl had been counting on matching Tennessee against Boston college.

Now it may have to reach out and take a team that might otherwise have gone to the Orange or the Cotton Bowls. Texas A. and M. has to be fitted into the picture somewhere.

Alabama and Mississippi State are eligible southern delegates but they play each other tomorrow. Fordham is eager, but has to get by New York University. Nebraska is a possibility, but has a game with Kansas State.

In addition to these battles that have a bearing on the bowls, Army and Navy will renew their annual gold-braded rivalry before more than 100,000 fans at Philadelphia, Duke and Pitt will collide in an inter-sectional struggle and numerous attractive traditional and conference contests will add regional zest to the program.

Thus Saturday's schedule shapes up as a fitting climax to the campaign instead of the anti-climax it would have been had Texas A. and M. not been sidetracked in the "second Thanksgiving day" upheaval.

There were some other surprises in that batch, too. Brown and Columbia fought to a scoreless tie with Brown twice being stopped on the one yard line. Bucknell took advantage of a break in the final period to beat Albright 7-0.

Wake Forest edged out South Carolina 7-6 in the Southern conference.

Kansas rolled over Colorado State 26-0, Arkansas outscored Tulsa 27-21 and Creighton whipped Wichita 7-0 with Johnny Knolla reeling off 114 yards to retrieve his position as the nation's leading groundgainer.

Goodyears Squeeze Out Win Over Sheboygan

Sheboygan—(P)—The Akron Goodyears squeezed out a 35-34 victory over the Sheboygan Redskins last night in the opening game of the National Professional Basketball league season here.

Forward Ben Stephens tossed in 21 points to pace the winners. Kolar, Redskins center, led Sheboygan's scorers with eight points.

Sheboygan rallied fast in the closing minutes to close a nine-point gap, but Nagode, Goodyear guard, and Stephens sent the Akron team ahead again to stay.

Northeastern Wisconsin Coaches Draw Football Schedule for 1941

Menasha—The 1941 football schedule for the eastern and western divisions of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference was adopted at the fall meeting attended by about 70 coaches, superintendents and principals Thursday night at the Menasha High school activities room.

E. F. Thomas, Shawano, president, presided at the session. A. J. Armstrong, Menasha High school principal and secretary and treasurer of the conference, gave his report as well as a resume of the football season.

Most of the meeting was spent discussing officials. Arthur E. Johnson, Clintonville, gave the report of the conference committee on officials. N. A. Calder, Menasha, and John Holzman, Neenah, were other members of the committee.

The committee contacted both officials and coaches in preparing its report. The committee recommended that the present system of selecting officials, requiring the approval of both schools, be abolished. The committee also suggested that the fee for seniors officials be $10 plus mileage instead of $7. The committee also advised establishment of an apprentice class of officials at $7 per game and suggested that only one approved list of officials should exist.

Approve Master List

After a lengthy discussion, the western division schools unanimously approved establishment of a master list of approved officials. All officials approved by five of the seven schools will go on the list. However, the old system of selecting officials will be used first in which each school will have its own approved list. The home team will attempt to secure officials approved by both teams but if they are not available can use any man from the master list.

Debate coaches of the conference made tentative plans for a conference debate meeting in February. Robert Ozanne, Neenah, reported on the debate tournament held there recently. The executive committee of the conference met Thursday at ternoon and the Band Mothers association served a dinner at 6:30.

The western division football schedule for 1941 follows:

Sept. 20—Clintonville at Shawano; Menasha at New London; Neenah at West DePere.

Sept. 27—Kaukauna at West DePere; New London at Shawano; Clintonville at Neenah.

Oct. 4—Kaukauna at Menasha; New London at Clintonville; Shawano at West DePere.

Oct. 11—Clintonville at Kaukauna; West DePere at New London; Menasha at Neenah.

Oct. 18—Neenah at Kaukauna; Shawano at Menasha; West DePere at Clintonville.

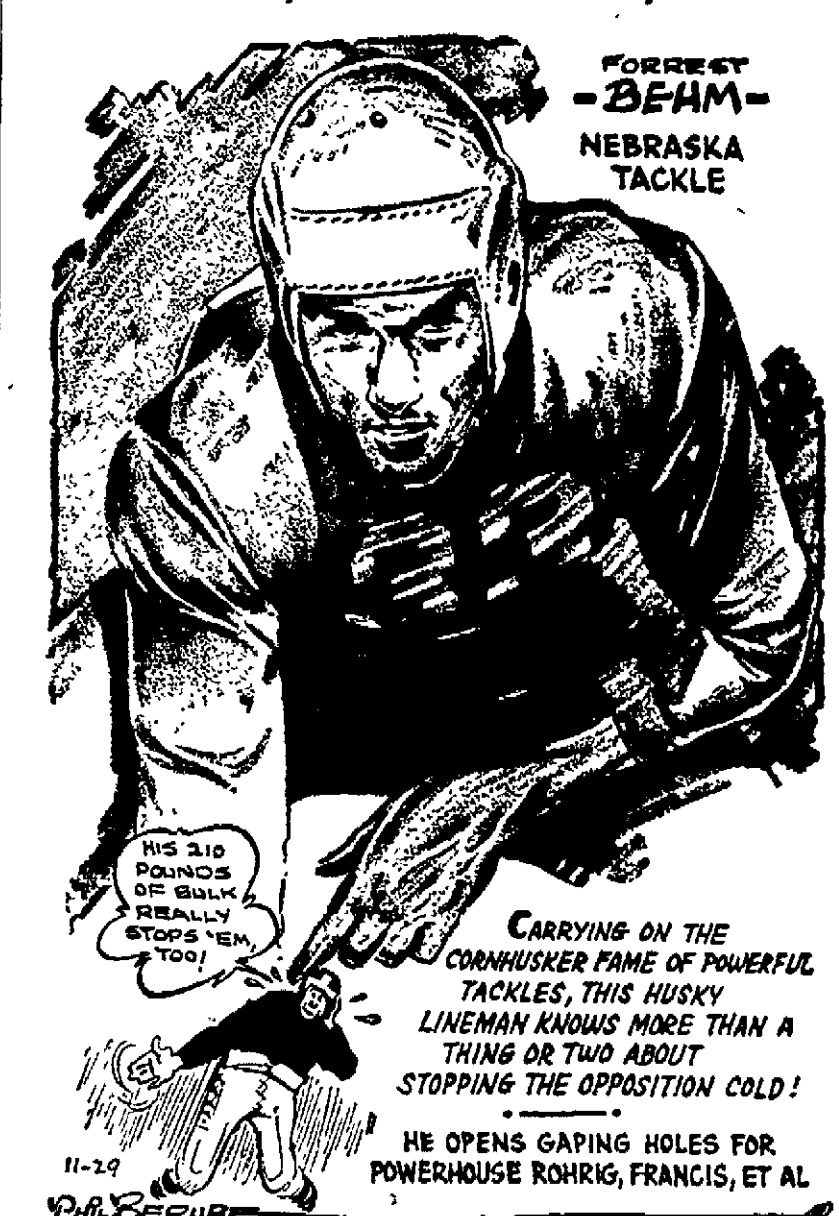

Oct. 25—Kaukauna at Shawano; Neenah at New London; Menasha at Clintonville.

Nov. 1—New London at Kaukauna; West DePere at Menasha; Shawano at Neenah.

The Menasha-Neenah game scheduled for Oct. 11 and the New London-Shawano game, scheduled for Sept. 27 will be changed to the traditional Armistice day dates.

Army and Navy are Ready for Tomorrow's Football Classic

Philadelphia—(P)—The army and navy, wedded in gridiron competition 50 years ago, salute the golden anniversary of their magnificent rivalry tomorrow in Philadelphia's $4,000,000 municipal stadium.

The squads each more than 40 strong arrived at separate stations here last night and hastened into seclusion at suburban retreats.

"We're here to do a job," Major Emory E. (Swede) Larson of the Navy said briefly. "Army's always hard for the Navy to beat."

"Listen," commanded Captain Bill Wood of the Army, "Swede Larson—and he's a good coach, too—has backs to burn."

And strangely enough, compared to Army and Navy games of yesterday, there are almost "tickets to burn" for the classic, which will include for the first time joint as well as single playing field maneuvers of the 4,000 cadets and middies arriving tomorrow.

Lieutenant Commander Morris Gilmore of the Navy, said, however, "we expect the crowd to stock up with the other four games that have been played in the stadium—that is, about 102,000 people."

Both elevens take their final workouts today. The Navy, quartered at the Manufacturer's Country club at Oreland, went to Temple Stadium; the Army, barracked at the Merion Cricket club, Haverford used an undisclosed main line field.

Army, in tip-top shape, is striving for its first major victory since it defeated the Middies in 1938.

Gold braid and uniforms polka-dotted Philadelphia streets today as the crowd streamed into the banner city to witness the historic clash which finds Army seeking its 23rd victory and Navy its 16th. Three games in the series dating back to 1890 have ended in ties.

All sessions of the convention will be open to guests from ski clubs in the central area. Robert Johns, chairman of the national convention reception committee, said.

K.C. Ramblers to Meet Kimberly

Neenah Team Points For Second Victory In Home Talent Loop

Neenah—The Kimberly-Clark Ramblers, which opened their first basketball season with an overwhelming victory Wednesday night at the S. A. Cook armory, face the highly touted Kimberly squad Sunday night at Kimberly.

The Ramblers walloped Little Chute in their opening Fox Valley Home Talent league, 36 to 26. Kimberly also has won its opening game.

The Neenah outfit wasn't pressed by the Little Chute quintet, for it held a substantial lead at the end of each period.

The 10 gamers who saw action against Little Chute probably will get assignments Sunday. They are Burton and Jansen, center; Whittinger, Lloyd, Ogilvie and Faleide, forwards; and Schmidt, Johansson, Buesing and Verbrick, guards.

Whittinger starred for the local five, shooting 12 points on four baskets and as many free throws. Burton collected eight points on three buckets and two gift shots.

The Ramblers will not play another league game until Wednesday night, Dec. 11, when they return home to tackle Clintonville.

Kimberly Plans To Beat Chuters

Kimberly—Tonight all roads lead to Kimberly High school gym with St. John's Dutchmen cagers doped to take it on the chin from Ray Hamann's five. At least Kimberly fans are confident of a Papermaker victory.

St. John's took Kimberly High for the third straight game last Friday. It was the first game of the season for both schools with the Dutchmen coming from behind to win. The Papermakers did not seem able to cope with their opponents changing style of play in the third and fourth quarter. However, last week's game is over the dam and tonight's will have a new victor. The Papermakers want to give their coach a win.

The high school band, with Gordon Kotkosky directing, will furnish the music.

Big Ten Figures Reveal Economy Of Scoring Effort

Made More Points and Downs But Without As Much Total Yardage

Chicago—(P)—Western conference football teams added a touch of economy to their 1940 championship play.

They averaged more points and more first downs per game than in 1939 and did it without gaining as much total yardage and despite increased penalties.

Here are the figures (conference games only), as issued by the conference service bureau:

	1939	1940
Game
Avg.
Points	13.29	13.85
First downs	10.16	10.5
Total yards-gained	225.4	213.7
Yards penalized	28.7	32.4

Other conference statistics showed that the teams averaged 13.2 passes a game, completed 4.9 and had 1.56 intercepted—all slightly under averages of the year before.

In punting, however, they bettered 1939 figures, averaging 8.5 punts a game for a distance of 37.5 yards.

Average attendance jumped 14.9 per cent on the basis of the 37,498 games was 1,799,898, an increase of 408 per cent over 1939 when 53 games were played.

Further statistics: Passes accounted for 20 touchdowns, running plays for 70. . . . Of nine field goals scored, Indiana and Minnesota each got three. . . . The second and fourth periods were the most productive in scoring. Led by Minnesota's 54, a total of 213 points was made in the second quarter; Northwestern got 65 of the 199 scored in the final period.

The longest scoring play—95 yard kickoff return by George Franck of Minnesota against Purdue.

Longest scoring run from scrimmage—80 yards, by Bruce Smith of Minnesota and Ollie Hahnenstein of Northwestern, both against Michigan.

Longest scoring pass—74 yards, by Wisconsin's John Tennant to Dave Schreiner against Minnesota.

Longest punt return for score—79 yards by Michigan's Paul Kromer against Ohio State.

Longest return of intercepted pass for score—47 yards, by Tom Farris of Wisconsin against Minnesota.

George Paskvan High Scorer for Badger Gridders

Registered All His
Markers at Madison;
Schreiner, Ray 2nd

Madison — (P) — George Paskvan, of La Grange, Ill., senior fullback, tallied 30 of the University of Wisconsin football team's 125 points to take team scoring honors for the 1940 season.

Although Wisconsin lost four out of its eight games, its opponents ran up only 134 points, or nine more than the Badgers.

Paskvan, who was named All-Western conference fullback this year for the second consecutive time, turned in all his scoring performances on the home turf of Camp Randall stadium. He marked up two touchdowns against Marquette, one against Illinois and two against Indiana.

Tied for second place in the scoring column were two sophomores, Dave Schreiner, of Lancaster, end, and Bob Ray, of Eau Claire, fullback, with 18 points each. Schreiner scored a touchdown in the Marquette, Minnesota and Columbia games, while Ray scored one in the thrill-packed Purdue clash and another in the Indiana game. He collected six points on conversions, missing only two kicks all year.

Another sophomore, Jim McFadden, of Winnetka, Ill., halfback, placed third with two touchdowns. Right behind him was Don Miller, of Dixon, Ill., junior halfback, who garnered nine points on a touchdown and three conversions.

Mark Hoskins, of Lancaster, sophomore halfback, Johnny Tennant, of Fennimore, senior halfback, Tom Farris, of Chicago, senior quarterback, Cliff Philip, of Libertyville, Ill., and Al Lorenz, of Oak Park, Ill., senior ends, and Ray Kreick, of Milwaukee, junior wingman, scored one touchdown each. Fred Gage, of Green Bay, senior guard, marked up two points on conversions.

An analysis of the Badgers' scoring plays shows the ground attack was somewhat more effective than the aerial offensive. Eleven of their touchdowns were made via the ground route, while seven were registered on passes. One was made on an intercepted pass.

Wisconsin counted 79 first downs to its opponents 89, and completed 46 passes out of 139 attempts to its opponents 46 out of 132 attempts.

Clark Signs as College Coach

Detroit Lions Mentor
Says Grand Rapids
Job Means Security

Detroit — (P) — The big stadiums filled with their cheering multitudes and the high-pressure methods necessary in jobs where victory was the only thing that mattered were forgotten today by George (Potsy) Clark, one of football's big time coaches for more than three decades.

Clark, one of the greatest backs in football history at University of Illinois before the World war, has signed to coach and act as public relations director at Grand Rapids University, a school that has sponsored football for only two years.

"This position represents security to me," said Clark, coach of the Detroit Lions during the past season. "I have two daughters approaching college age and I shall be glad to have them at a growing institution. I myself will be happy to be in a situation that does not depend on my won and lost record."

Announcement that Clark had signed at Grand Rapids was made by school officials yesterday. In Detroit Fred L. Mandel, Jr., owner of the Lions, said he had not notified Clark that his contract would not be renewed when it expires Feb. 1, the date Clark will take over his new duties. Rumors have persisted that Mandel intended to dismiss Clark, whose 1940 team won five games, lost five and tied one.

Clark's coaching career started in 1916 after his graduation from University of Illinois. He coached and played on service teams during the war. After hostilities ceased, he coached at Minnesota, Michigan, State, Kansas and Butler.

In 1931 he went to Portsmouth, O., as coach of a National Professional Football league eleven. When the club's franchise was shifted to Detroit in 1934 he came along, winning the league title the following year. In 1937 he left Detroit to accept a three year contract as coach of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

He returned to Detroit for the 1940 season, accepting a one year agreement the day Mandel purchased the club from George A. Richards and his associates for $225,000.

Concordia Cage Team Coached by Captain

Milwaukee — (P) — Concordia college, of necessity, has given the same back to its basketball players. Captain Wally Hardt, smallest man on the squad, took over the job of coaching the Concordia team Wednesday when Coach Bill Ackmann was stricken with appendicitis. The coach underwent an operation Thursday and will be out of active service for an undetermined period.

Hardt will be in complete charge of the team and will play Saturday when the squad meets North Park college of Chicago here.

Clintonville — The second round got off to a flying start this week with the Engineers and Purchasers each taking three straight.

Paced by Karszewski and Stromberg, each with a 570 series, the Purchasers had little trouble in defeating their opponents, the Advertisers. Likewise, the Engineers with three men over the 500 mark, took three from Western Sales. The Cost Quint, winners of the first round, dropped two to Eastern Sales, while the Shop Office took two from the Accountants. Paris and Service were idle.

Don Lash Wins Another Jaunt

Former Indiana U.
Star Outclasses the Field at AAU Meet

Detroit — (P) — Don Lash says he derives sheer joy from running and consequently it will not be surprising if the seven-time national senior amateur athletic union cross country champion remains in track competition for some time to come.

After Lash had run 52 challenges into submission and set an all-time record of 30 minutes 25.8 seconds for the 10,000-meter A. A. U. harrier event at Meadowbrook Country club here yesterday the obvious question concerned Lash's future.

"This may or may not have been my last race," said the former Indiana university star. "Frankly, I didn't plan to enter here today but I started training and found myself in the best condition of my career. I like to run and will probably keep on competing in track and cross country events just as long as I get enjoyment from participating in them."

What was joy for Lash must have been futility for the rest of the field because only Gregory Rice, the former Notre Dame runner, was able to challenge the victor. Rice ran in time well under all previous marks for the event but still finished almost beyond hailing distance of Lash.

Third place went to Luigi Becalli, of the New York Athletic club, the organization that won the team championship with a total of 23 points.

Best previous time in the event was the mark of 32 minutes 17.2 seconds set by Lash in winning in 1934.

Texas Aggies Jarred Out of The Rose Bowl

Lose to Texas U. in
First Minute; Crowd
Of 45,000 Sees Game

By Felix R. McKnight
Austin, Tex. — (P) — Numb, driven into silence by defeat, the once invincible Texas Aggies weren't certain today whether they would just call it quits for the 1940 season or play in a New Year's day post-season game.

The one foot they had in the Rose Bowl was jarred from its mooring yesterday by a gallant University of Texas team that simply gave them a country licking, 7-0, before the largest throng in all southwest college football history—45,000.

The Cotton Bowl classic in Dallas is probably their for the taking, despite their defeat. The Texas Aggies still are a great football team, one that had won 19 successive games before Texas reared up and preserved an 18-year-old hex that has kept the Aggies from winning in Austin since 1922.

The Aggies wanted no part of bowl talk today, but Coach Homer Norton said that after a holiday the players would gather on the campus down at College Station and "think it all out."

The Aggie team that stood on the threshold of football immortality—the team that was on the verge of clinching an undisputed South-west conference title for the second straight year, the distinction of being the first team in all history to play in the Sugar and Rose bowls in successive years, was just another football team yesterday before the Texas onslaught.

True, their quarterback and spark, Marion Pugh, was out of the game with an injured leg, but the Aggies weren't as good as Texas University—for the day.

It took 57 seconds—the first 57 seconds of the game—to prove it.

In that brief span Peter John Layden, a magnificent player, and Texas, struck like lightning. Layden shot 34 and 33-yard passes to cowboy Jack Crain and Noble Doss to move to the one-foot line and then plunged over himself for the game's only touchdown. Crain converted—and that was the game.

Field Is Wide Open

Pasadena, Calif. — (P) — Texas A. & M.'s first football defeat in 20 games threw the Rose Bowl field wide open today.

year but passed up by Southern California in favor of Tennessee, were the choice of most Pacific coast fans for this year's bid to the New Year's classic here.

Whether they were definitely eliminated was problematical. Defeated teams have been invited, and a movement is gaining headway in behalf of Nebraska, Big-Six champion beaten by Minnesota in the season's opener.

But the biggest clamor was set up by supporters of Tennessee and Boston college, both with clear records. The Vols lost to U. S. C. 14-0 last January and their backers say they deserve another chance. Although Boston college is a definite possibility, the general impression here is that the Eagles are already set for a Sugar Bowl appearance.

What Stanford University—considered a certain western choice—thinks about it remained to be seen. The Indians still have their traditional finale against California coming up Saturday and are not committing themselves until it's over. The coast conference vote will be taken immediately after that game. Stanford so far is undefeated.

Cheese Production Hits New Record

Wisconsin's cheese production last year was the largest on record, and the quantity of condenser products made in 1939 was greater than that made in 1938, according to a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus. Outagamie county cheese factories manufacture over 13,000,000 pounds of American cheese annually.

The output of creamery butter in the state was considerably smaller in 1939 than reported by dairy plants the previous year.

Reports of dairy plant manufacturers for 1939 which have just recently been made public by the crop reporting service, show that despite the changes in the output of certain dairy products, Wisconsin's share of the nation's production of dairy products made in 1939 was about the same as it was in 1938.

The report of dairy manufacturers in the United States shows that Wisconsin produced nearly 53 per cent of all the cheese made in the United States last year.

Wisconsin's dairy plants last year made nearly 28 per cent of the condenser products manufactured in the nation. The production of condenser products was the second largest in the history of the state and 4 per cent above the 1938 output.

Seed Samples are Being Tested at State Laboratory

Farmers and seed dealers should send their samples to the state seed testing laboratory early to avoid a last-minute rush. J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent advised today.

"Less small seed has been grown in the state than usual this year and the quality is low," warns Henry Lunz, in charge of the laboratory. "To avoid loss and insure the opportunity for a good crop it is essential that all seed be tested before planting. Send your samples early and be sure such samples are representative of the lots from which they are taken."

Testing seed not only determines the percentage of germination but also detects the presence of weed seeds. Lunz estimates that new weed infestations would be cut in half if farmers planted only properly tested and labeled seed.

Samples of seed to be planted in 1941 are already being received at the seed testing laboratory. Last year a new all-time record was established when more than 12,000 samples were analyzed of which over 10,000 were submitted by farmers and dealers.

A seed sample for analysis should contain at least two ounces of seed, Lunz points out. The laboratory charges a fee of 25 cents per sample for testing seed offered for sale.

Farm Auction Near Bear Creek Tuesday

A farm auction will be held at the Mae E. Rice farm about 5 1/2 miles west of Bear Creek on Highway 22 Tuesday. An auction will be held at the G. Arthur Johnson farm located three miles north and then a half mile east of Sugar Bush corner, Monday. Colonel Arthur Doede, Iowa, and Colonel A. L. Schoenke, Clintonville, will be the auctioneers.

Cows Produce More Milk When Watered Indoors in Winter

Dairy cows will produce more milk and butterfat if they are watered indoors during the winter, according to a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus from the state department of agriculture.

In an experiment at Iowa State college, animal husbandmen found that dairy cows watered by means of water bowls drank approximately 18 per cent more water and gave 3 1/2 per cent more milk and nearly 11 per cent more butterfat than cows that were watered twice per day at an outside tank.

The investigators found that cows watered with water bowls drank an average of about 10 times in each 24 hours. The cows watered outside frequently drank but once a day.

It takes 3 1/2 pounds of water to produce one pound of milk and in the winter, when cows aren't getting grass, they have to drink more water.

If farmers don't have watering facilities inside, the next best thing is to sink a heater in the outside tank.

Wisconsin Crops At Peak This Year

This year, 1940, will be remembered as one of the best crop years in Wisconsin's history.

Agricultural statistician, Walter H. Ebling, reported this week in a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus, that production of all crops and feed supplies is at a record level for the state.

Wisconsin's corn yields averaged 42 bushels per acre. This is a new high in the state's history. The corn crop is more than 9 million bushels larger than the 1939 crop. The tame hay crop is also the largest in the history of the state.

With the feed supply in the state probably better than it has been at any previous time, Ebling expects that there will be an increase in livestock and dairy production during the coming winter. Recent reports indicate that the number of cattle and sheep in feed lots has increased during recent months and milk and egg production have been maintained at high levels all fall.

Women Will Discuss Salads at 2 Meetings

"Salads and Salad Dressings" will be the discussion subject at open meetings to be held for women at the Seymour Methodist church, Monday and American Legion clubhouse in Appleton Tuesday, it was announced today by Miss Irene Skutley, county home demonstration agent. The meetings will open at 1:30 in the afternoon.

Miss Gladys Stillman, nutrition specialist of the home economics extension department of the state department of agriculture, will assist Miss Skutley with the meetings.

Children's Dentistry Is Topic of Meeting

Waupaca—The Wisconsin State Board of Health, in cooperation with the Wisconsin State Dental society, is sponsoring a one-day post-graduate course in children's dentistry in this city Wednesday, Dec. 4. The course is to be conducted by Dr. George Morgan, professor of children's dentistry at Marquette university. Dr. G. J. Mortell of Green Bay will speak on the subject, "Dental Problems."

A luncheon will be served at the Delevan hotel at noon. About twenty-five dentists are expected to attend the meeting, which is in charge of local dentists.

Census Bureau Makes Science Out of Guessing on Registration

BY W. B. RAGSDALE

Washington—(P)—The census bureau, which has developed the art of guessing into a science that can do dizzy things with figures, did it again with an estimate on the number of registrants for military service.

It boiled up a mess of statistics and brought out beforehand a guess that 16,404,000 would register for military service. Actually, the figure stands now at 16,315,676 registrants with a few cards yet to be heard from.

The difference amounted to a shade more than the old prohibition figure of one-half of 1 per cent.

To get its figure, the bureau had to use a barrel full of 10 year-old material, making allowances for certain intangible influences that have been working up in America during that period. This was more difficult when it tried to break down the figures into a state-by-state compilation and here the margin of error narrowed or widened, according to the impact of these influences.

But the base for the guess was the 1930 census. The bureau took out of that census the number of boys between 11 and 25 years old. From that, it subtracted the actual figures on the number of deaths that occur in those age groups over a 10-year period. Any figures on newly-naturalized citizens of that age-group were brought in.

State Livestock Check Underway

Annual Program Is Being Carried Out By Reporting Service

Questions regarding large feed supplies, the relatively low prices of hogs and high prices of cattle and their effect on the state's livestock population will be answered in part when thousands of Wisconsin farmers return the livestock survey cards they have just received from the crop reporting service of the state and federal departments of agriculture. The survey is made annually in cooperation with the post office department.

Fully 13,000 Wisconsin farmers have been asked to take part in the nationwide livestock survey which is conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture. Cards with 36 questions concerning the production of livestock and livestock products have been distributed to farmers by the rural mail carriers. A report will be issued giving the intentions of the farmers in the state and nation as to plans for change in the number of livestock on their farms.

Wisconsin has had an excellent crop year and feed supplies are abundant, which is likely to bring about an increase in the livestock population in the state. The extent of these changes will be measured by the livestock reports now being made by the farmers.

Some changes also may be made in line with the current economic conditions. The department of agriculture's Outlook Report says that the supply of hogs for market next year will be smaller than in 1940 but that the supply will be larger than average. The decrease in supplies may be accompanied by a stronger consumer demand for meats, and prices, particularly those received for hogs, should average higher in 1941.

Pegler's Very Polite but Still Disagrees With Ickes

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—I am going to try to discuss in a polite, impersonal way the recent press release of Harold Ickes, in which he viewed with alarm the fact that whereas a majority of the daily papers supported Wendell Willkie, nevertheless a majority of the people endorsed President Roosevelt. He concludes from this that the press has lost public confidence.

"an unprecedented and progressively perilous situation requiring public consideration." I am not sure this means that the press has lost public confidence, but I will say that if that is what it does mean, then the public itself could be mistaken and the press right, nevertheless, even though its editorial opinion had been rejected by an overwhelming vote rather than by a ratio of 55 to 45, which was fairly close.

With the contention that the press should reflect the opinions of its readers I disagree emphatically. Who else, besides Ickes, claims that the press should represent its readers as a congressman represents his constituents? If the press should come to that, then no paper could have an opinion of its own. It would engage in sordid trading to retain its popularity, as congressmen unfortunately do, and run with low and evil gangs of practical political crooks, instead of opposing them. Mr. Ickes, it may be observed, being a politician, finds himself at home in such political company, but that is a characteristic of his chosen trade. It is his privilege to play that way—always at his political peril, of course—but the suggestion that the press is decadent because it doesn't play that way is a mistake.

Some papers do undertake to tell their readers how to vote, but that is a presumption. It is a different matter to present argument in favor of one candidate and against another, with the hope, always that the arguments are correct and honest. In the last campaign I heard no specific charge that the facts cited against the New Deal were false or distorted. However, there was a disposition on the New Deal side to denounce facts as scurrilous merely because they were embarrassing. Almost any criticism of Mrs. Roosevelt was sure to draw the charge of scurrilousness, regardless of the facts of the case, although Mrs. Roosevelt is herself a clever, resourceful and tireless machine political worker. For verification of that observation, I refer to James A. Farley's autobiography, written in calm days long before the campaign, in which he praised Mrs. Roosevelt's political ability and diligence.

But did Ickes Give Willkie An Even Break

I dislike to accept any facts or figures from Mr. Ickes without independent verification, but I will concede, for the sake of argument, that those papers which supported Willkie gave him more or less the better of it in their treatment of straight campaign news. But did Mr. Ickes, in his campaign speeches, give Willkie an even break with President Roosevelt. Did the various and numerous press bureaus of the government give Willkie an even break, and what sort of press could we expect to have if the recent vote were construed as a repudiation of the free press as a repudiation of its trust? We must have

There will be little decrease in auto accidents until it dawns on us that driving a car must get absolutely undivided attention.

The number of little activities we attempt to carry on while driving would make us the laughing stock of the monkey world if monkeys happened to have a few extra wrinkles in their brains.

There's the talkative driver, who gets so steamed up over the subject of the conversation that it becomes an argument, followed by a crash and a few expiring groans. There's the inquisitive driver, who had only four hours of sleep on each of the past two nights. How peacefully this driver seems to be napping now, down there in the ditch at that sharp curve.

There's the lunching driver, who's on a holiday, true, but just can't stop at noon. This driver will try to unwrap a sandwich at a mere fifty miles per hour, but is not destined to eat it.

There's the smoking driver, who must get that new package of fags open, traffic or no traffic. R. I. P. There's the day dreamer at the wheel. What a wonderful childhood this driver had! Why, back in 1910—WHAM!

And as for the drinking driver—well, the alcohol is more useful in the "radiator" in front of the wheel than in gladiator behind it.

England to Tighten Control Over Food

London—(P)—Additional government control of food through a wage-price-marketing policy was forecast Thursday by informed sources.

The government is confident it can "weather the months ahead" without difficulty or hardship, these persons said, but extension of rationing and expansion of communal feeding system are likely.

Every encouragement will be given by the government to increase production of milk, potatoes, bread and vegetables and to secure more home grown forage for cattle.

WHALES

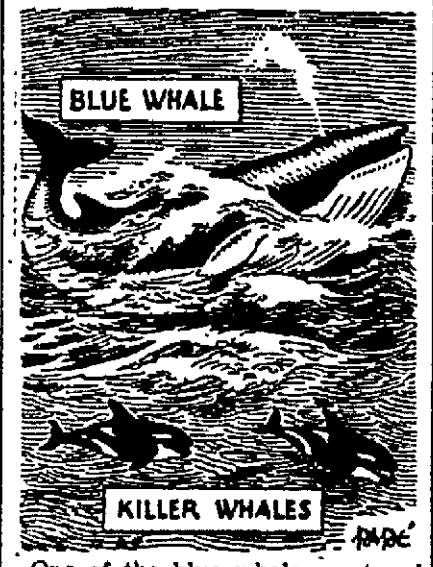

When we think of some of the olden dinosaurs — like the thunder lizard and the "gigantosaurus" — we are apt to fancy that they rank as "the largest animals of all time."

That would be true if we spoke only of land animals, but it isn't true in regard to all animals. There are animals in the ocean today which are larger than any of the olden dinosaurs.

I am thinking of whales. A good-sized whale weighs more than a dozen elephants put together. It used to be a common error to think of whales as fish, but this mistake is not made very often nowadays.

Whales breathe air and have no gills. Fish, on the other hand, have gills with which they take oxygen from the water. We might say that fish "breathe water."

Whales have no scales. Their tails spread out sideways, not up-and-down like the tails of fish. Blue whales are the largest members of the whale family. They are on the average from 75 to 80 feet long, and some of them are from 90 to 105 feet long.

One of the blue whales captured in the Ross sea was 107 feet in length. Its weight was about 110 tons. This means it weighed two or three times as much as the largest dinosaur of past ages.

Ross sea is far down toward the South Pole. Many blue whales have been obtained there and in other parts of the Antarctic.

We also find blue whales in northern waters. They have been captured near Iceland and Norway, off the coast of Newfoundland, and in the Bering sea.

The blue whale was so named because of its gray-blue color. Its tongue, as well as most of its body, has that color.

Men with their harpoons and explosives are enemies of blue whales, and have killed thousands of them. The blubber of a blue whale may supply from 80 to 120 barrels of oil.

Other enemies are dolphins of the special kind called "killer whales." They are relatives of whales, and sometimes are classed as small whales. They grow to a length of from 20 to 30 feet. Cases are known in which three or four killer whales have slain a gigantic blue whale.

Babson Expects War Industries To be Permanent

Sees Continuation Of Defense Work After End of War

BY ROGER BABSON

New York—People talk as if the armament program were only a flash-in-the-pan. They ask, "What will happen when the war stops?" I believe that armament activities will go on for at least another generation after the war ends. A new industry is being born. Hitler has laid the foundation for the greatest industrial boom the United States and Canada have ever witnessed. We may expect to see employment reach its highest peak in decades. Not only will unemployed men who now want to work find jobs, but the "slack" in unemployment (normally amounting to a "float" of some 4,000,000) will be taken up.

No new industry was born between 1914 and 1919. A few airplanes were built, but they were of little consequence. The fact that France went into World War II with much the same equipment that she used in World War I proves my point. During World War I larger cannons and better machine guns were used and more ammunition consumed than in any previous war—but no basic changes in big guns, rifles, or munitions took place. Certainly, nothing occurred to make obsolete, cities, factories, and even homes.

There is a vast difference between the world of 1940 as compared with the world of 1917. Hitler is brutal and is changing the map of Europe by a surgical process, but he is making a great contribution to the world in becoming the father of a new industrial revolution. Business has been looking for this during the past 10 years. The armament industry for which Hitler is responsible holds a greater promise for future growth than does any present enterprise. Cities in the interior will benefit greatly from this new industry, especially smaller communities of from 10,000 to 20,000 population.

A Repeat Business
Almost every implement, device, or machine which enters into the defense industry picture involves repeat orders. I think of this not so much from destruction through which ammunition is consumed, guns and tanks blown up, or planes and ships destroyed, but rather from a quick obsolescence standpoint. Consider the changes that have taken place in fighting planes of all types, not from the end of World War I to the beginning of World War II, but just since the current affair started.

Wing-tip and fuselage machine gun installations are only one improvement out of many. Read the newspapers and technical journals to visualize the improvements that are taking place in mechanical, electrical, and chemical devices which are fast rendering obsolete existing implements of war whether these be planes, guns, tanks, rifles, or munitions. This does not take into account new inventions which for the most part remain secret.

Unless one is close to manufacturing and its relationship with the defense program, it is difficult to appreciate the importance of constant improvements and replacements. The production of defense products automatically sets up an entirely new group of repeat businesses and the growth of the defense industry is bound to continue after World War II is over. Entirely new products will arise as its technological processes develop.

Let me recall the first test of what ultimately brought about our modern battleship. After the Monitor sunk the Merrimack on March 9, 1862, did the building of iron ships stop with the ending of the Civil war? No—the little Monitor started a great new industry, the building of iron and later of steel ships for use in both war and peace. The construction of ships is still going on. Out of this industrial pregnancy of Hitler's new and more far-reaching industry, new forms of ship construction, city planning, and buildings of all kinds will develop.

Remaking Factories
Yes, as the bombing plane has changed warfare it is drastically changing the layout of cities and the architecture of factories, shops, and homes. New manufacturing plants are already being built without windows to avoid being located at night. They are also being divided into separate buildings so if one building is destroyed the other units can continue work. As cities have gradually been rebuilt to be more fireproof, so they now will be rebuilt to be bombproof. This will take many years. The defense industry does not mean solely the manufacturing of implements of war, but should ultimately result in changes in roads, water pipes, gas mains, and power stations.

The construction of homes must radically be changed to provide the greatest protection. Civilian population, which in today's warfare suffers so much, must be cared for through individual and mass shelters. School houses must be redesigned as well as theatres and other buildings. Additional subways must be built to take not only street cars, buses, and railroads underground, but to provide shelters for the public. There is no end to the amount of new construction work that Hitler has forced us into.

N. Y. Stocks Fail to Draw Buying Power

Edge Forward but Suffer Relapse in Late Trading

New York—(U. S. D. A.)—Stocks tried for recovery in today's market but generally failed to attract real buying power.

Prices for steel, motors, aircraft, shipbuilding and specialties edged forward fractionally in the forenoon. There was a mild relapse after mid-day and, at the close, gains were reduced to negligible amounts in many instances or replaced with declines.

Utilities were soft throughout and numerous other issues finished where they left Thursday. Dealings were about as slow as in the previous session, transfers being around 500,000 shares.

A little buying in the morning was attributed partly to the persistent idea that a technical comeback was due after the lengthy reaction. The home business picture remained optimistic from a speculative standpoint, brokers said, but traders inclined to step carefully pending more assurances the British war condition is not growing worse. Scant stimulus was derived from the flow of dividends and earnings statements, which was beginning to ebb. Liquidation to establish loss for income tax purpose was in evidence and considerable switching out of one stock and into another accentuated the confusing drift.

Resistance was displayed by shares of N. Y. Shipbuilding, International Mercantile Marine, Eastman Kodak, U. S. Gypsum, Boeing, Glenn Martin, General Motors, American Smelting, N. Y. Central, Bethlehem Steel and Youngstown Sheet.

Bonds and commodities were shaky. Wheat at Chicago was off 1/2 to 3/4 of a cent a bushel and corn down 1/4 to 1/2. Cotton, in late transactions, was 20 cents a bale down to 10 cents.

Wall Street still was inclined to worry over mounting taxes. Much interest was expressed in the comments of President Roosevelt at his press conference in which he said he would look with disfavor on a sales tax as a means of raising additional revenue for the defense program.

Ward's computation put this week's automotive production at a new high mark for any week since mid-summer 1937. The week's assemblies aggregated 128,783 units compared with 102,340 in the preceding short holiday week and 98,638 a year ago.

Settlement of the Aluminum of America company's strike was viewed as a prop for sentiment although it was feared union difficulties in other sectors might crop up before long.

Forecasts that steel mill operations next week would be maintained at near-capacity levels added stocks in this division.

Growing needs of Great Britain to replace her shipping casualties bolstered shares of the boat building concerns. Utilities remained depressed by rising costs and taxes and the likelihood that power rates could be boosted to offset the expense bill.

Wheat Prices Lack Support

Effort to Extend Recovery Trend Fails to Crystallize

Chicago—(U. S. D. A.)—After trying for most of the session to extend its recent recovery trend, the wheat market was forced to retreat today due to lack of sufficient support from milling and baking trade buyers as well as commercial and professional dealers and speculators.

Early gains that amounted to as much as 1 cent were replaced with small fractional losses before the close. Pit brokers said no aggressive selling was in evidence and that most of the operations represented spreading and switching of hedges along with scattered realizing sales.

Receipts were: wheat 10 cars, corn 134, oats 20. Wheat closed 4 1/4 lower than yesterday, December 88 1/2, May 86 1/2, corn 1 1/4 down, December 63 1/2, May 61 1/2, oats 1/4 lower to 1 1/4.

U. S. Public Favors Material Aid for Greece, Poll Shows

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—American public sympathy with Greece and desire to give her material aid is demonstrated in a public opinion survey now being conducted by the Institute. Preliminary returns show a substantial majority in favor of making American war materials and air-planes available to the embattled Greeks, in much the same spirit of sympathy for small nations as was noted when Finland was invaded last year, and Norway last spring.

The question put to a cross-section of voters deals with the issue of lending money to Greece for the purchase of war materials. Legal obstacles, such as the Johnson Act, at present stand in the way of any actual loans to the Greeks, but it is significant that a majority of American voters favor a Greek loan in principle.

"Do you think the United States should lend money to Greece for the purchase of arms, airplanes, and other war materials?"

With interviewing in the survey still going on this week, returns thus far show the following:

Help Greece 60
Do not help 40
One in six (15 per cent) was undecided.

City and School Band Issue Before Council at Waupaca

Waupaca — A special meeting of the common council was called for

Wednesday evening to meet with a committee from the board of education, to consider a petition signed by 323 persons, asking for a referendum vote at the April election on the following question: "Be it resolved that the city council appropriate the sum of $300, but not to exceed that amount, for the purpose of conducting a series of band concerts during the months of June, July and August during 1941."

The petition follows closely one that asked that the city band be replaced by the high school band in playing the summer concerts. At that time the committee agreed that the plea of the 600 petitioners to the first request represented a substantial opinion which must be recognized; that the city band which has built up a reputation for good music over a long period of years might be jeopardized if replaced with a band made up of immature musicians; that school musicians drift apart during the summer and cannot be assembled for rehearsals and concerts and that asking the school band to play the summer concerts would mean immediate installation of a full time instructor of music in the school, would thereby disarrange the school program, would stress music out of proportion to the rest of the school program and would exploit students for Main street purposes.

It was suggested that some method might be worked out whereby the school band may be given more consideration, and that the Memorial day concert could be turned over to it for that purpose. One or two early school band concerts in the summer also were suggested.

The city band which has been playing every summer for more than fifty years, receives an annual appropriation of approximately $1,200 and this sum has already been put into the budget for 1941. What the referendum vote might accomplish if accepted by the citizens, and what might become of the contract which is expected will be signed by the first of the year with the regular city band, the council decided would be a matter for legal opinion.

Unless the question is solved, one of the city musicians said at the meeting, the present band director and part time instructor of the school band, Prof. Ernest Weber, will tender his resignation to take effect Jan. 1.

Aldermen Claude Johnson, Willys Holmes and Einer Torsell from the council, and Alfred Mortenson, L.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

War or Measures Short of War

A sober and candid estimate of the situation must, it seems to me, lead to the conclusion that the issue in the months immediately before us is not whether as a matter of business or sentimental philanthropy or partial self-defense we shall sell or lend or give a little more or a little less assistance to Great Britain. The issue is not whether a little less assistance will "keep us out" of war or a little more assistance will "involve" us in the present war. The issue is whether before it is too late we can and will take the necessary measures to prevent the present war — a war in which we are not called upon to fight — from developing into a new and greater war in which we shall have to fight.

This is the real issue. But it is not being made plain to the people because the responsible and informed men who understand the situation are still silenced by the fairly large number of sincere but uninformed men who have never at any time in the last few years understood this war. At a time when only positive measures clearly and resolutely undertaken, and backed by the utmost unified effort, can protect this nation against involvement in an immense war, the Administration and the Congress and the nation are paralyzed by the deadly error that if we help Great Britain a little she may win, but that if we do not help her enough and she falls, then there will be peace, an unpleasant peace no doubt but nevertheless a peace.

The notion that the defeat of Britain would end the war and bring peace is now held by the very same people who have been telling us (1) that there would be no war, (2) that if there were a war, it would be waged against Bolshevik Russia, (3) that when the war began, it was a phoney war, (4) that it was not a phoney war, it would be a stalemate in which Hitler never took the offensive, (5) that when he took the offensive and defeated France, the defeat of Great Britain would follow in a few weeks, (6) that when he did not defeat Britain, he would in any event "unify" and "organize" the Continent of Europe, and so by undesirable means achieve a desirable end, (7) that even if he has failed to unify Europe, the war will come to an end if the British are defeated. This last illusion is complete, and as regards America more deadly, than all the illusions which preceded it in the series. For the certain truth is that the collapse of Britain, or even the defeat of Britain in one or more of the great theaters of the war, would be like the breaking of a dam which has been holding back a raging flood. The torrent of war would burst out upon all the oceans and into all the continents.

For America It's Still Limited War

For, though this is now a very serious war in northern Europe, in the eastern Mediterranean, and in China, it is still for Americans a localized and limited war. The Axis cannot get into Africa or Asia or into any part of this hemisphere and Japan is held back in the Pacific. The totalitarian allies are held back by the resistance of the British and their allies in Europe and the Near East, by the resistance of China and by the reserve power of the British, the Dutch and ourselves in the Pacific. They are held back, they are held down, in the grip of British sea power in Europe and the threat of American sea power in the Pacific. In this confined war we are not compelled to fight and as long as the war can be held within these limits, we may never have to fight. The thing which keeps us out of war is the power which keeps the war from expanding all over the world. The dam which restricts the war, and therefore enables us to arm without fighting, is a great fortified line—fortified by warships, airplanes, British and allied land forces, the Chinese armies, the British, Dutch, and American power in the Pacific. This line runs around the world from the British Isles to Gibraltar to Suez to Singapore to Hawaii to Panama, and on the other side of it the Nazis, the Italian Fascists, and the Japanese expansionists are held back.

If this line is broken through at any vital point, the forces of the allied aggressor states will pour through the breach. There will be nothing to stop them at the point of the break — through or at any other point in the system of defense except the soil of continental United States and perhaps of the British Isles. Thus if the Axis can isolate the British Isles by blockade and bombardment, the British cannot hope to hold Gibraltar, Suez, any part of northern Africa or the Middle East, or any position in the Far East. The road to South America will be wide open; the road to the Indies and Australia will be wide open. For with the forces we have the best we could hope to do would be to hold Hawaii and Panama, and that would be a desperate task because we would face a hostile and victorious and immensely powerful alliance in both oceans.

Wishful Thinking Can't Eliminate Danger to U. S.

But even if the British Isles hold fast, a break-through in the Mediterranean will at once extend the war dangerously into Africa, the South Atlantic, South America, and all over southern Asia and the Pacific. For the British would then have to bring back all their forces from all over the world to resist a single-minded concentrated assault on the British Isles, and we should have to bring all our forces back for the immediate defense of Hawaii, Panama, Canada, and our nearest neighbors.

If there are no forces left to oppose the Japanese in the Pacific or the Germans and Italians in Africa and the South Atlantic, is it conceivable that with the richest empire ever opened to a conqueror before them, they will not seize the opportunity? Here they are fighting desperately to conquer relatively barren and already overcrowded territories in Europe and Asia, and yet there are men who tell us that if Asia, Africa and South America were at their mercy, they would turn their backs upon these unbelievably great prizes of empire and would amuse themselves constructing a "united Europe." Self-deception and wishful thinking and intellectual inertia and the lack of a sense of reality cannot be carried further than to say that a war-like alliance which has conquered most of the world will renounce its conquests—that men who have overthrown the defenses of the existing order of the world will spend the rest of their days sitting Slovakia and Bulgaria carefully and precisely into a "new European order."

Campaigns of 1941

Will Determine Its Spread

During the campaigns of the year 1941 it will be determined whether the war can be kept localized by the resistance of the British and their allies, the Chinese and ourselves, or whether the dam is to break and the war is then to overrun the rest of the world. The outcome of the campaigns of 1941 will be determined not only by the power and valor of the British and the Chinese but by the lucidity and courage we are able to muster in the next few weeks and months. In the very immediate future we shall make the bed that we shall have to lie in for the very long future.

Our problem is how to use all the resources we now possess to make certain that the lines will hold fast through 1941; only thus can we be sure of the time needed to develop the armaments which will insure an Allied victory and our own security—they are the same thing—beginning in 1942. For if we are unable to insure an Allied victory beginning before 1942 with a wide extension of the war and our own isolation in a world where all the remaining great powers are allied against us. If the Allies hold through 1941, we can be strong enough in 1942 to insure their victory and our own complete security; if the Allies cannot hold through 1941, the arms we shall have in 1942 will not be sufficient for our own defense.

To U. S. Interest That Dam Doesn't Break

Therefore in 1941, it is our vital interest, and not a matter of business, sentiment or charity, to insist that the lines hold and that the dam does not break. We have said that we shall take all measures "short of war" to preserve the line which now separates us from the existing war. To any one who looks at the substance and not at the words, the only way in which our involvement can remain short of war. When there is no long or a firm buffer between ourselves and the three allied aggressors, then our defense will no longer be by measures short of war but by actual and total war.

The criterion, therefore, of what is a measure short of war is not whether under the rules of international law, the measure is "an act of war." By that criterion the totalitarian states have already committed acts of war against us and against them. They have broken their treaties, they have intervened by spies and agents in our affairs, they have trampled upon the rights of our citizens; we on our part openly helped their enemies and have declared we shall help them even more. By any academic and theoretical test everybody is already committing acts of war.

But this test has no meaning in the present situation. The question is not whether this measure or that is theoretically an "act of war" but whether it averts or does not avert bloody battles, the bombing of cities, invasion of this hemisphere or the sending of American troops overseas. That is what the American people mean when they hope to stay out of the war, and not whether a lawyer in the nineteenth century would have said that a measure was an act of war. Nor is the test whether Hitler or Mussolini or the Japanese say in their newspapers that a measure is an act of war; the test is whether the measure makes it more or less likely that they will be able to wage war against us and our vital interests. By this test every measure which makes it impossible for them to break through the dam and wage war is for us a measure short of war.

Therefore, it is only by taking promptly and resolutely all the
